Veterinary Well-Being Continuing Education Catalog

Veterinary-specific courses and conference watch list | Updated November 11, 2026 | Prepared for Oregon Veterinary Medical Examining Board

Purpose: A practical, nonexclusive directory of education relevant to burnout, moral distress, compassion fatigue, suicide prevention, teamwork, communication, psychological safety, leadership, and workplace systems. This revision builds on the April 2026 catalog and adds publicly discoverable offerings and 2027 conferences.

How to interpret the listings

"RACE verified on source" means the provider explicitly identifies that particular offering as RACE-approved. "Provider CE / verify course" means the program offers CE but the relevant course's credit needs checking. "Education / verify credit" identifies useful content without verified veterinary CE. Conference entries are opportunities to review agendas, not representations that a specific well-being lecture is scheduled.

Editorial and policy notes

The strongest accessible sources are not restricted to courses titled “mental health.” Conflict management, psychologically safe supervision, team retention, feedback, and workplace design offer credible prevention-oriented content. Conference registration does not mean every session is well-being-specific.

LinkedIn discovery: Public posts identified sessions from Reviving Veterinary Medicine/CoVet, Fear Free, and MedVet. These are leads, not evidence that recordings remain accessible or that credit extends to on-demand viewers. Private LinkedIn content was not accessible in this scan.
