

Kyle E. Miller, CISSP, has been working to ensure the availability, integrity and confidentiality of information to numerous businesses and government organizations for 28 years. His past experience includes working with credit bureaus and identity theft, military intelligence, healthcare providers and claims, municipalities, and county and state government.

All organizations base their decisions on information, the lack of information or fraudulent information may impede an entity's ability to meet its objectives. Mr. Miller's approach to information protection requires the development of strategies that promote information security behaviors, assessing risks and applying acceptable mitigation alternatives. Strategies and alternatives are focused to meet an organization's business objectives.

Mr. Miller has been the Information Security Officer for the Department of Human Services, State of Oregon since October 2004. He currently serves as the President of the Information Systems Security Professional (ISSA) Portland Chapter; and is a co-chair of the Security Committee for the Oregon and Southwest Washington Healthcare, Privacy and Security Forum.
