I disagree strongly with the state leasing recreational rights on public lands to the highest bidder. This is a short sighted attempt to bring in dollars to a state's budget which will lead down a slippery path to destruction of the quality of all public lands. There are better ways for the state to make up for budget short falls. If necessary charge a user fee for the public to hunt, fish, etc. Anything is better than what amounts to a "fire sale" of public lands which what this DRAFT stockade block area management plan amounts to. Don't kid yourself.

Put your thinking caps on and come up with a better way.
