

Oregon

Kate Brown, Governor

Oregon Board of Chiropractic Examiners

3218 Pringle Road SE #150

Salem, OR 97302-6311

Phone: (503) 378-5816

FAX: (503) 362-1260

E-mail: oregon.obce@oregon.gov

www.oregon.gov/obce

Public Notice

November 18, 2016

Peer Review Committee Openings

The Oregon Board of Chiropractic Examiners (OBCE) is currently accepting applications for service on the OBCE Peer Review Committee (PRC). There is one position open and one alternate member could be selected as well. Alternates may attend and participate in meetings and will become full voting members when there is an opening on the seven member committee.

The OBCE refers complaints to the PRC for in-depth file reviews and personal interviews with respondent doctors and sometimes complainants. Their primary role is investigatory and typically involves complaints regarding alleged violations concerning clinical justification, course of treatment, documentation, and billing. At the conclusion of the review, the committee makes a report back to the OBCE.

PRC members must be willing to assist with report writing and possible expert testimony in contested case hearings. Eight hours annual CE may also be earned by members, depending on how many times the PRC meets.

Any Oregon chiropractic physician in active practice for at least five years wishing to serve on this committee should submit a letter of interest and resume to the OBCE, 3218 Pringle Road SE #150, Salem, Oregon 97302, or fax 503-362-1260. If you have applied before, you are asked to provide a new letter and resume.

Women, people of color, and multilingual persons are encouraged to apply. Applicants from outside the Willamette Valley are also encouraged to apply.

If you have any questions, please call Cass Skinner, Executive Director, at 503-373-1620.

Peer Review Committee Member Characteristics and Expectations

Be committed to the Peer Review process.

Be prepared for PRC meetings having fully reviewed the case(s) and thought through the issues so as to be able to thoughtfully contribute to the discussion/process. This may involve four or more hours of preparation for each meeting depending on the complexity of the case(s).

Be detail-oriented.

Much of the work of the PRC involves the details of a given case. PRC members must be able to review records in detail for appropriate history, examination, assessment, treatment, record keeping, etc. Be able to summarize the details of the PRC's findings, giving examples, in report form for the OBCE.

Be clinically competent.

Have a good knowledge of the various types of conditions chiropractors treat, the examination procedures for given complaints and the treatment options. Be familiar with, and able to reference, OAR chapter 811, ORS chapter 684, and Oregon P & U Guidelines.

Be able to think independently, critically, and objectively.

Be able to think through issues on your own without emotional bias or undue influence from other PRC members.

Be able to hear divergent points of view, but work to achieve consensus.

Be able to put aside your opinions/views long enough to thoughtfully consider the opinions of the other PRC members, weighing the merit of each opinion presented. Respect the opinions of the other PRC members and work towards a consensus when possible.

Have compassion for complainants and respondents.

Be considerate of both the complainant and respondent realizing this is often a difficult situation for both. Try to put yourself in their “shoes” given the circumstances that were present at the time in question.

Be able to safeguard strictest confidentiality.

Most of, if not all, the documents and information dealt with in peer review is strictly confidential. Information about the various complaints should not be disclosed to anyone other than a member of the OBCE, OBCE staff, or fellow PRC member. Information about a given case may not be discussed with the complainant or respondent.