

Recipient: Oregon Board of Forestry and Gov. Kate Brown

Letter: Greetings,

There are 10.6 million acres of private timberland in Oregon -- that's one-sixth of the entire state.

While small streams make up the majority of streams in the state, on private timberlands logging can occur right through small streams, making water too warm and muddy for many aquatic species and sometimes even local drinking water. Oregon's own science team and two federal agencies said in 2015 that Oregon's logging rules fail to adequately protect clean water.

It's been more than 20 years since the state updated logging rules on private lands. Now is the time to protect Oregon's streams!

The Oregon Board of Forestry has proposed increasing buffers on streams that bear salmon and steelhead to help keep water cool and clean. But it is not enough. To protect healthy streams, clean water, and vibrant local communities, Oregon needs buffers around all streams -- the streams with fish and without, the streams that run year round and the streams that run seasonally. Every stream matters when it comes to clean water for fish, wildlife, and people.

All of Oregon's neighboring states provide better protection for streams on private timberlands. Oregon's lack of protection for small streams is shameful. It is time for Oregon to step it up by:

- 1) Instituting mandatory buffers in all of western Oregon that extend 100 feet on either side of all small and medium fish streams;
- 2) Updating rules for small "non-fish" streams in western Oregon within 12 months; and,
- 3) Updating rules for all streams in eastern Oregon within 12 months.

Recipient: Oregon Board of Forestry and Gov. Kate Brown

Letter: Greetings,

There are 10.6 million acres of private timberland in Oregon -- that's one-sixth of the entire state.

While small streams make up the majority of streams in the state, on private timberlands logging can occur right through small streams, making water too warm and muddy for many aquatic species and sometimes even local drinking water. Oregon's own science team and two federal agencies said in 2015 that Oregon's logging rules fail to adequately protect clean water.

It's been more than 20 years since the state updated logging rules on private lands. Now is the time to protect Oregon's streams!

The Oregon Board of Forestry has proposed increasing buffers on streams that bear salmon and steelhead to help keep water cool and clean. But it is not enough. To protect healthy streams, clean water, and vibrant local communities, Oregon needs buffers around all streams -- the streams with fish and without, the streams that run year round and the streams that run seasonally. Every stream matters when it comes to clean water for fish, wildlife, and people.

All of Oregon's neighboring states provide better protection for streams on private timberlands. Oregon's lack of protection for small streams is shameful. It is time for Oregon to step it up by:

- 1) Instituting mandatory buffers in all of western Oregon that extend 100 feet on either side of all small and medium fish streams;
- 2) Updating rules for small "non-fish" streams in western Oregon within 12 months; and,
- 3) Updating rules for all streams in eastern Oregon within 12 months.

Kalei Augustine	Portland, OR	2015-05-15	I want clean water protected in Oregon
Heather Chapin	Bellingham, WA	2015-05-17	Encouraging best practices on private land is imperative to the ecological health of Oregon. And we need clean water!
Francis Reedy	Albany, OR	2015-05-17	Oregon should be a leader in Conservation, not the laggard! Our waters, fish, and fauna need help.
BRETT JENSEN	PALO CEDRO, CA	2015-05-18	Even if fish and clean water wasn't part of the problem, it's just common sense!
Jenefer Smalley	Langley	2015-05-18	This kind of negligence has gone on for far too long, no matter what country you are in. This kind of logging practice is shameful. I am shocked that this style of logging is still taking place with all we know now about conservation and degradation of forest and aquatic ecosystems. This is 21st century, and we know better.
Jeremy Monroe	Corvallis, OR	2015-05-19	These are the headwaters of our river systems. They deserve our highest value, and merit our most sensitive harvest practices. We can no longer claim ignorance, if ever we could.
David Jensen	Vida, OR	2015-05-21	We need to do more to protect our rivers and streams which connect with forest lands.
Martha Benner	Deming, NM	2015-05-24	Need to keep all the clean water we can; it cannot be replaced ever again.
william d'ambrosio	chelmsford, MA	2015-05-24	When nature stops living- our future dies with it.
Linda Stead	Talent, OR	2015-05-24	I was born and raised in Oregon. Streams are a core part of Oregon's ecology. Logging destroys habitat including streams. It's all an interwoven tapestry with each part dependent on the health of each of the other parts. Don't be short sighted! Protect our wilderness and wildlife by protecting our streams.
Melody Dodd	Eugene, OR	2015-05-24	Tributaries matter.
Kathi Sizemore	Edgewater, FL	2015-05-24	I want our water protected, clean and free.
Frances Reinhardt	Oakridge, OR	2015-05-24	I think we need to leave our trees ALONE. Keep Oregon beautiful
Laura Fuentes-Munoz	San Juan Capistrano, CA	2015-05-24	Protect clean water in lakes and streams.
Mary French	Tualatin, OR	2015-05-24	As a native Oregonian who has lived here more than 50 years, I urge you to protect the waterways of Oregon.
Leon Werdinger	Joseph, OR	2015-05-24	Hadn't been in industrial forest lands on the west side for years. Recently went back and saw fresh clearcuts that I couldn't believe were still legal - no buffer on cutting along seasonal streams and cutting on slopes obviously too steep to hold soil (with resulting erosion/landslides visible). Couldn't believe this was allowed in 21st century Oregon! Obviously unsustainable and harmful.
Lin Ahearn	Lebanon, OR	2015-05-24	I live alongside a small river in Western Oregon and have seen fish decline as well as flooding due to not having a forest buffer and allowing rains to flow freely down the mountain sides.
Matthew Yodis	OREGON CITY, OR	2015-05-24	Can't live without good water, unchanged by oily, smelly, smoky forest machinery running through it. Basically, that's the beast we are stopping, at the back door.
Robert Eric Caffrey	Beaverton, OR	2015-05-24	Why would you not do the best to protect the people in Oregon? It's the right thing to do.
Jennifer stephenson	Portland, OR	2015-05-24	I believe strongly that we have to protect our natural resources and wilderness areas in the Pacific NW

anne beck	grants pass, OR	2015-05-24	I'm signing because it is important to protect our natural resources
Marie Holloway	Corvallis, OR	2015-05-24	Keep Our Water Clean!!!
Eric Vu	Beaverton, OR	2015-05-24	Water is another invaluable resource from nature that many species depend on. Corporations and certain people have blatantly disregarded this fact for their own personal gains. I believe we need to go back to a simpler time where we depend on these kinds of resources and act as responsible stewards of the land, air and water and play our part in the ecosystem.
Maggie Vaughn	Coquille, OR	2015-05-24	All too often, Moneyed Interests heavily influence the repeal or diminish effectiveness of existing good laws -- in this case New Laws are needed for Private Landowners who farm Timber on their land to extend Oregon's clean water standards to All waterways, large or small. Thank you.
Garrilynn Harvey	Prineville, OR	2015-05-24	For one thing selling off timberland to foreign invader logging companies has GOT TO GO. Another thing- and the obvious- all clear cutting has GOT TO GO. The largest trees need to be left behind as they are the oldest and the strongest trees. There needs to be mandatory replanting for burned down forests and for forests that have been previously clear cut. This includes reforestation of natural shrubbery growth. This will help to bring in much needed snow packs in the mountains which in turn create spring melting and replenishing the watersheds, natural guzzlers and forest streams. All of these efforts that should and can be made lifelong will encourage the animals to come back which this planet and human beings alike NEED for life.  Cleaner air will also be an offshoot to these efforts and is NATURAL reductions in air pollution. Get the forests recovered and the temperatures will drop in the summertime significantly.
Valerie Hauser	Jefferson, OR	2015-05-24	Steams need our protection, both to keep them clean and to protect ecosystems. Please take the necessary steps to protect them for now and for posterity.
Philip Matin	Eugene, OR	2015-05-24	I like clean water
alisha renee	Portland, OR	2015-05-24	Clean water is normal and should be easily accessible
Daniel Wells	Ashland, OR	2015-05-24	We humans now have the "powers of gods", but we haven't been exercising anything like the wisdom and responsibility that those powers entail. And thus we are causing another 'great die-off' in the biosphere, and all the life of which we can be sure, that is, all the life on this one little planet, is going to be suffering the consequences of our in/actions for a long time. If we want life to develop in healthier, more diverse, more conscious ways, we have to start with ourselves and our actions. In the current culture every ecological victory is temporary and every loss is permanent; I wonder if we can get that in time to pass on to the future a heaven on earth ever more beautiful, rich, diverse and comprehensive.
Judith Maron-Friend	Portland, OR	2015-05-24	It is no secret that the planet is seriously polluted and we must do all we can to, not only, correct this condition but put in place laws that will protect the planet now and in the future.
Adelaide Kent	New York, NY	2015-05-24	Our water resources are becoming more and more precious
Sarah Deumling	Rickreall, OR	2015-05-24	I manage my own private timberland. I know this can be done. Healthy streams are part of a healthy forest ecosystem. Water is of infinitely more value than a few more boards in the long run - and I would maintain, even in the short run.

Melanie McCloskey	Hood River, OR	2015-05-24	With drought and rising demands for our water, commercial, private and public I feel its very important to protect healthy water systems from every aspect of usage.
Tony Soter	Portland, OR	2015-05-24	because there has to be a better way! clear cutting ravages the terrain. long term sustainability can't rely on this form of management.
Dorothy Reeves	Coos Bay, OR	2015-05-24	We abuse life's necessities at our peril. This has to stop.
Gayle Peterson	Corvallis, OR	2015-05-24	We as humans need to stop altering the natural order. We need fresh, clean water and we also needs the forests.
Jack Duggan	Jacksonville, OR	2015-05-24	I am the family caretaker for a large tract of forest that includes the headwaters of a stream feeding the Applegate River. Recent logging on neighboring industry land has exposed a quarter-mile of that stream to direct sunlight. In the 1970s I was proud to follow OFP rules while loggin the family land, but today those rules are inadequate for what is happening across Oregon's landscape. Stream systems must be protected from their source onward. Please update the OFP to put Oregon back in a leadership role for progressive forestry management.
GARY KILLPACK	LINCOLN CITY, OR	2015-05-24	Hemp is much better fiber to make stuff from. Cheap, double harvest's, no harsh chemicals for their use, unlike forest products
John Flinn	Portland, OR	2015-05-24	This is destroying our streams and forests. What universities teach such forestry practices? Yuk.

Stewart Corbin	Portland, OR	2015-05-24	The logging industry is a cagey industry...just like coal, petroleum, or any mining company to name a few. Keep them on a tight lease. If I had my way I'd stop the lumber industry altogether. I know I have tunnel vision, but I can't see any need to continue murdering trees. Go synthetic, but I suppose they have their issues too. Good luck to you and your courageous mission.

Nathaniel Brown	Portland, OR	2015-05-24	Water is a precious resource, and after being in California and drinking their tap water that tastes like chemicals I want to protect our pristine drinking water for our children and future generations to come.
sheila chambers	Brookings, OR	2015-05-24	We only barrow from the future this land, we cannot own it, we have no right to destroy that land for short term profits. Clear cutting must be BANNED!!!! How many more years are we to stand by as greedy loggers destroy our forests, fowl our streams, kill our fish? Will this DAM COUNTRY ever represent the interests of THE PEOPLE & OUR LAND instead of that of the dam corporations that have bought too many politicians who care more about money than the future.
Phyllis Reynolds	Salem, OR	2015-05-25	We need to protect all of Oregon's waterways
Sarah Burke	Beaverton, OR	2015-05-25	Several unethical industries (is that redundant?) are posing a severe and lasting threat to all our clean water, and they need to be STOPPED!
Elizabeth Sheppard	Portland, OR	2015-05-25	I'm concerned about drought, and putting profits over protecting our planet.
Gary Mueller	Hillsboro, OR	2015-05-25	I care about Salmon and the hydrologic eco-systems in Oregon and the US
Jennifer Kirkpatrick	Bend, OR	2015-05-25	I live in Oregon and I have seen first hand the damage that clear cutting does to the environment. Muddy water runs into our streams, and landslides create even more damage. Private timber owners are more interested in their bottom line than they are in protecting the environment and they need to be held accountable. Please do all you can to protect our lands and water. Thank you.
Tamera Danforth	The Dalles, OR	2015-05-25	PLEASE protect our water and Oregon's beauty!!

Robert Thelen Thelen	Burns, OR	2015-05-25	I like clean water!
Barbara Dougan	Portland, OR	2015-05-25	Clean water is very important as well as protecting our rivers and streams. Logging shouldn't take precedent over fish and wildlife.
Leah Palmer	Kendallville, IN	2015-05-25	All water should be protected.
Patricia Biggs	Tigard, OR	2015-05-25	As forest are clearcut they destroy watersheds. Selective logging can take place but foresters need to look at the terrain to make sure they aren't polluting streams which is destroying water -- which is rapidly becoming the most priceless commodity in our universe.
tegan carter	salem, OR	2015-05-25	without clean water there is no life. period. oregon is precious for still having some degree of untamed, virgin wilderness...let's do all we can to keep it that way!
Dixie Gainer	Nehalem, OR	2015-05-25	I value clean water and in todays world you have to fight for it.

Ee Ping Tan	Corvallis, OR	2015-05-26	I am living here in Corvallis, Oregon. It's a matter of health and quality of life when it comes to clean water and healthy streams. No one wants to get sick and even die later in life to realize the root cause is actually the drinking water or pollution in the environment around.
Tina Rosa	Deadwood, OR	2015-05-26	I have lived in the Oregon woods for 40 years and have had to deal with landslides, water pollution and interference with salmon spawning due to horrific logging practices.
Kimberly Friedkin	Beaverton, OR	2015-05-26	Clean streams are not only important for wildlife, but also have a direct relationship on the economic health of downstream communities.
Jolynn Moore	yamhill, OR	2015-05-26	I'm signing because clean water is paramount. What is more important than clean water to drink? Our lives are linked to water. Clean water is essential to our lives. I beg of you to protect our clean water.
Judy Dillon	Newport, OR	2015-05-26	I was raised in Springfield, Oregon and have now returned. Oregon watersheds are very important to me. Timber companies should be growing trees (that's their by-line that they are able to grow more rather than cut down and clear more and more land)!
cheryl erb	Salem, OR	2015-05-26	Clean water and healthy streams need protection.
Vallie Lenzen-Debad	Sandy, OR	2015-05-26	I am signing because I care deeply about Oregon and preserving our precious resources and pristine wilderness from the ravages of corporate greed. My God, when you go to purchase wood products here it is 100 times more expensive than anywhere else. Yet we give away our lumber to the Chinese to further rape us of our resources. Next Nestle wants our water. The water belongs to all of us. NOT SOME GREEDY CORPORATION WHERE THE CEO SAYS IT'S NOT OUR WATER! Please PROTECT our precious watersheds, forests and riparian areas where so much diversity exists because we as Oregonians care about the environment and take care of it as part of our own unique history. We SEE the value of this because we have acted in a most educated manner. Protect clean water and streams and the wildlife that depends on them, including us.  I was born here and believe Oregon can be a leader and make a real difference in this world by leading by example. Too many times people who own their own land don't care HOW it effects their neighbors. They should be required to follow rules just like everyone else. ALL logging rukes need to protect water and be updated to do so. Thank you.  Vallie Lenzen-DeBad

Sarah Ince	Cottage Grove, OR	2015-05-26	Please keep Oregon clean.. Oregon has some of the cleanest water and air in the nation. We moved away from the Northwest in 2012, but we plan on going back in a few months. The air and water quality in Arizona doesn't even compare to Oregon!! The air is so fresh and clean in Oregon.. I have severe allergies to the toxic dust here in AZ, but I never had allergies in Oregon or Washington, even though more plants grow there. The environment is balanced and natural. The old growth forests really contribute to the overall health of the environment. Here in AZ they bring in plants from all over and I don't think humans are really supposed to be living here in this valley. We need to clean up the environment everywhere, but Oregon is already pretty clean compared to most places. I have very conservative values, but I am also a tree hugger. I guess you could say, I am a conservation tree hugger. Please keep Oregon green and clean.
richard thompson	portland, OR	2015-05-26	This is of the UTMOST importance to our future
Gregory McMurray	Lake Oswego, OR	2015-05-26	I am an aquatic ecologist with experience at the DEQ, DOGAMI, and DLCD. If you don't put buffers in streams that have no fish (now) those streams will carry sediment into larger ones. It is that simple.  G. McMurray, PhD
joseph youren	Lincoln City, OR	2015-05-26	I know that Oregon's current regulations have proven inadequate in protecting streams. 100 foot protections on larger streams do not work if the smaller tributaries are not protected. Warm, muddy waters from harvested areas flowing into streams protected by the current 100 ft setback do not cool down and clear up. All streams need at least 100 ft of protection and larger streams need 200 ft.
john christensen	corbett, OR	2015-05-27	Small streams are also vital to fish habitat protection. Include buffers against logging on these streams as well.

Scott Bailey	Tillamook, OR	2015-05-27	I live on the Oregon coast in a County where logging is one of the main industries. In addition, I am a Restoration Ecologist and I conduct stream restoration projects throughout the area. I see the effects of our ineffective buffers everyday and I know Oregon can do better.
Jack Hozen	Silverton, OR	2015-05-27	I'm a fisherman and see what logging has done to fish habitat, for protected species. It's time the money making lumber companies do something to give back to nature, and not just take from nature.

christopher childs	Portland, OR	2015-05-29	I'm signing because I would like to see reforms made to protect streams and water sheds on or within private forests from outdated and unsafe logging practices. Logging is a part of Oregon history, economy and culture but if we continue to overlook our water sources I fear for the quality of life for future generations.
Matt Neznanski	Salem, OR	2015-05-29	Clean water matters more than a few board feet of lumber.
Jean Vinson	Eugene, OR	2015-05-29	Improve and protect Oregon's watersheds.
Eric Shoemaker	Portland, OR	2015-05-29	Improving stream buffer regulations (by making required buffers to be larger, among other things) is long overdue.
Philip Hager	Gresham, OR	2015-05-29	If we don't protect our streams with a healthy sized buffer zone we are asking for even greater losses in both fish and wildlife.  Having been born here in 1947 I have watched the deterioration of our state and would much rather see Oregon setting the standards, as opposed to being a good example of mistakes, when it comes to helping nature.
Kathryn Rickard	Gold Beach, OR	2015-05-29	I am signing because it is the right and moral thing to do. We need to have clean water to drink, protect our wildlife, and our Salmon. Where do you think all this chemical goes when they are spraying tributaries that are not protected? Right into our fish bearing streams and our drinking water. It is time for Oregon to say enough and actually do something about it since our house representatives and senators don't. Please make the necessary changes for our future.
Shannon Johnson	Troy, NY	2015-05-29	i'm from the NW and spend considerable amts of time on the Oregon coast... i flyfish and have experienced the lack of stream buffers for instance on drift creek (alsea).. any rain and its immediate MUD. not good. even backward WA has bigger stream buffers!!
Peter Donahower	Tualatin, OR	2015-05-29	Stream buffers should be a no-brainer. Bankside trees & healthy riparian zones are more valuable for the shelter, LWD & thermal refugia they provide over the long-term than that timber may be in the short-term
JG Zettergren	Canby, OR	2015-05-29	Water is precious and the new gold in the world. Don't allow its abuse by logging corporations and don't allow its abuse by any person

mitzi linn	Eugene, OR	2015-05-30	I lived in S. Or for 5 years where we depended on stream water for drinking. Also saw many horrible logging shows--clear cuts. I am under the impression that state forests are less protection than federal...thanks

C. Benedict	Renton, WA	2015-06-02	Clearcuts do NOT make HEALTHY forests. Please PROTECT what few trees are left! You guys have a TREE as your state emblem, it would look pretty stupid if you hate trees so much that you cut them all down.
