

Highways, Streets, and Roads

Measuring mileage

- Centerline mileage is the number of miles of two-way roads.
- A street with a lane in each direction, a street with two lanes in each direction and a turn lane in the middle, and a divided freeway with four lanes in each direction all count equally in terms of centerline mileage.
- Lane mileage counts a mile for each lane in each direction. Thus, a mile of street with a lane in each direction counts as two lane miles.
- The 8,067 centerline miles of state highway represent 19,076 lane miles.

<sup>2</sup> Forestry, Parks, Fish and Wildlife, state institutions, and university campuses also own roads and streets.

<sup>3</sup> Federal agencies such as the U.S. Department of Forestry and Army Corps of Engineers also own and maintain roads in Oregon to access natural resources.

Due to a federal ruling, Oregon's 28,553 miles of roads under the Bureau of Land Management's jurisdiction are not considered public.
