TO ALL LOCAL GOVERNMENTS, PLANNING BODIES AND PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Enclosed herewith is a copy of the appropriate section of the Statewide Inventory of Historic Properties as expanded under special contract by Stephen Dow Beckham in 1976.

We hope and trust that the Inventory will assist you in the development of your comprehensive plans and other matters. It should be remembered that the Inventory is not complete in this form. It will be revised and enlarged continually. Moreover, archeological sites are not included for purposes of site protection. In many cases, properties which have been entered into the National Register of Historic Places are not included. We are including as an addendum a listing of properties in your area which were included in the Inventory prior to 1976.

If questions regarding the Inventory arise, please contact us at 378-5001.

Sincerely,

Paul B. Hartwig
Historic Preservation Coordinator

NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES:

The National Register of Historic Places is the official list of the nation's cultural resources worthy of preservation. It is maintained by the National Park Service under authority of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. The list contains districts, sites, archeological sites, buildings, structures and objects of national, state or local significance. National Historic Landmarks are automatically included. A cumulative listing of all National Register properties is published annually in the February issue of the Federal Register, the regular Congressional publication. Under certain circumstances, National Register properties are eligible for federal preservation assistance.

DEFINITIONS OF PRESERVATION TERMS AS USED BY THE NATIONAL PARK SERVICE:

Preservation is the process of sustaining the form and extent of a structure essentially as it now exists. Preservation aims at halting further deterioration and providing structural stability but does not contemplate significant rebuilding.

Restoration is the process of accurately recovering the form and details of a property as it appeared at a particular period of time by means of removal of later work and the replacement of missing original work.

Reconstruction is the process of reproducing by new construction the exact form and detail of a vanished structure, or part of it, as it appeared at a specific period of time. Reconstruction should be undertaken only when the property to be reconstructed is essential for understanding and interpreting the value of a historical district and sufficient historical documentation exists to insure an exact reproduction of the original.

Rehabilitation is the process of returning a property to a state of utility, through repair or alteration, which makes possible an efficient contemporary use. In rehabilitation, those portions of the property which are important in illustrating historic and cultural values are preserved or restored.

- - - - -

National Parks - Outstanding, relatively spacious land and water areas under Federal ownership. They usually contain a diversity of scenic, scientific and other values and support a broad range of visitor-use programs.

National Monuments - Outstanding land and water areas, usually under federal ownership. They generally contain lesser acreage than National Parks and support a narrower range of visitor-use programs. Their purpose is to preserve resources of special scientific significance.

National Historic Sites - Properties of outstanding historical value to the nation as a whole. They may be under federal, state or local ownership. In the latter cases, the National Park Service acts in an advisory capacity.

National Memorials - Properties commemorating historic events and/or personages of exceptional significance to the nation. Usually they are under National Park Service jurisdiction, but ownership may be mixed.

National Historic Landmarks - Outstanding examples of the nation's historical and/or cultural patrimony. They are evaluated and recommended for designation by the Advisory Board on National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings, and Monuments. Federal ownership is not implied. Ownership may be public or private, but owner must agree to maintain property in accord with accepted preservation precepts if he accepts designation. Landmark status offers higher priority in the distribution of grants-in-aid under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and is acknowledged by a bronze plaque and a certificate from the Secretary of the Interior.

National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings - Conducted by the National Park Service under authority of the Historic Sites Act of 1935 for purposes of identifying historic and prehistoric places of national significance. The Survey forms the basis of National Historic Landmark designations.

HABS - Historic American Buildings Survey - Initiated by the National Park Service in 1933 for purposes of assembling a national collection of detailed records of historically and architecturally significant buildings. Conducted in cooperation with the American Institute of Architects and the Library of Congress.

HAER - Historic American Engineering Record - Established by the National Park Service in 1969 for purposes of documenting historic engineering, industrial and technological works. Conducted in cooperation with the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Library of Congress.

Cultural Resources In Oregon

To date, some 70% of the State of Oregon has been surveyed by historians to identify historic sites and buildings important to Oregon's past. At the same time, only some three percent of the state has been surveyed by archeologists. The results of these cultural resource surveys indicate that Oregon contains some 2,500 historic sites worthy of placement on the Statewide Inventory and perhaps some 120,000 archeological sites, for a density of about 1.3 cultural sites per square mile.

The large difference between numbers of historic and archeologic sites is merely a reflection of the fact that Indians have lived here for some 20,000 years while Euro-Americans have been in Oregon only about 173 years. The large gap between seventy percent and three percent in completeness of surveys is due to several factors: 1) archeological sites are "buried" to a greater degree and therefore more difficult to locate 2) historians have written records to utilize, often telling them where to look 3) the Indian societies were pre-literate and most of their oral traditions telling of old village site locations were never recorded by early settlers.

Since the year of 1906 the federal government has passed several laws and executive orders in order to try and preserve the cultural remains of both Indian and early Euro-American history. The government realized that the native cultures had been largely destroyed and their cultural remains were likewise disappearing under the shovel of "pot-hunters", the construction of towns, and the activities of road builders, loggers, miners and others.

Each archeologic site is like a book of which only one copy exists. Properly excavated and analyzed, a site can tell who lived there, when they lived there, how large the group was, what the people ate, the climate at the time, the type of social organization the group practiced, average life spans, religious practices and even some of the diseases they suffered from. If this site is destroyed, either through the purposeful digging of relic hunters or through the accidental activities of house, road, sewer line, water line, or other developers, then the book, which is public property has been burned.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The Asa Craig house is a two story, wood frame structure which stands on the west side of Highway 82 about two miles south of Enterprise, Oregon. This house is on what was formerly the Craig ranch. The building was designed by an architect and has a rather unique style. The hip roof is broken by a small dormer with a louver on the east (front) elevation. The windows are mostly six-over-one, double hung. The exterior of the house is clapboard siding. The walls on the second story are set on a slant on the north and south elevations, giving the structure a vague mansard-roof-effect. An open porch is suspended above the main entry set in the center of the east elevation on the first story. The main door is flanked by benches built into the porch and house (see photo). The house is in good condition.

Reportedly this house was featured in Life Magazine in the 1930's as a special example of an American ranch home. The ranch is set near the foot of the Wallowa Mountains near Enterprise, Oregon.

Asa P. Craig was a son of George Samuel Craig. George Craig was born in 1854 in Missouri and during the Nez Perce War settled in the Wallowa Valley in 1878, being one of the first whites to come to the region. Craig eventually acquired 3,500 acres for his cattle ranch. In 1896 he invested in the Wallowa National Bank. Asa P. Craig, who built this house, was a son of George and Sallie B. Dishman. In 1912 Asa Craig was a student at Oregon Agricultural College in Corvallis.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The M. Crow & Company General Store is a two story wood frame building with a gable roof which stands on the west side of Highway 82 in Lostine, Oregon. This building is a simple structure with little ornamentation. A one story attachment on the south elevation has a false, wood front with decorative brackets. The building has a shiplap exterior and has one-over-one, double hung sash windows. The east (front) elevation retains what are probably the original display windows. The structure has some three-over-six, double hung sash windows on its second story's south elevation. The building is a general store in 1976.

Michael Crow was born February 12, 1879, in Noble County, Ohio. He was a son of William U. and Susan (Cooley) Crow. At the age of nine years he emigrated to Oregon with his parents. Educated in the public schools, Crow became a rancher as well as a clerk in the store of Fitzpatrick & Company in Lostine. Joining his brothers S.P and C.E. Crow, he purchased the Lostine Mercantile Company and commenced operating the firm as M. Crow and Company. Crow married in 1910 to Jennie Olsen. According to the biography of William U. Crow, published in 1912 by Joseph Gaston, this business became M. Crow and Company about 1906-07.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The First National Bank of Joseph, Oregon, is a one story, brick building with a brick facade with dressed, stone caps on the west (front) elevation. The building stands on the east side of Highway 32 in Joseph, Oregon. The facade bears the inscription: "First National Bank 1908." The building has two bays on the front elevation: one contains a recessed entry and the other has a window. Both of these bays have been altered. Each bay has a brick voussoir. The building has a stone foundation.

The First National Bank of Joseph was organized by Frederick S. Scribner, who became the institution's first cashier. Born in Iowa in 1882, Scribner was a son of Roderick H. and Lillian J. (Farnsworth) Scribner. Roderick Scribner was a banker. Frederick Scribner moved to Oregon in 1904 where an uncle had established a bank. In 1906 Roderick and Frederick Scribner opened the First National Bank of Joseph. In 1907 Scribner married Sadie Magee.

This building shares a common wall with the Dr. J. W. Barnard Drug Store on its south elevation (see file sheet).
