The Community Capability Assessment (CCA) process is a systematic, three-phased approach that aids emergency responders in evaluating, coordinating, and enhancing the cohesiveness of their emergency response plans.

The three phases of the process are:

- Phase I Emergency plan interface evaluation between the facility and fire department.
- Phase II Emergency plan interface evaluation between the fire department and the additional community resources.
- Phase III Emergency plan interface evaluation between the community resources and mutual aid, county and state resources.
