AGENCY READINESS CONTACTS

Readiness contacts acted as a project conduit for readiness activities during the implementation of the Workday Project. These individuals were tasked with preparing their agency for implementation and business readiness.

Each agency assigned someone the Agency Readiness Contact role to serve as the facilitator for the following efforts:

- be the point of contact for the Workday team
- facilitate the collection of data
- facilitate role assignment
- validate organizational hierarchy in the system
- ensure project communication cascades throughout their organization at all levels
- provide feedback to the project from their organization
- encourage employees to complete project surveys or assessments
- act as their organization's go-to person for the project
- understand how Workday will affect their organization and inform the project of any concerns or challenges

Individuals who are best suited for the Agency Readiness Contact role are organized, detail oriented, highly dependable, technology savvy and possess many of the same skills needed for a Change Leader, such as strong communication skills, change champion, trusted, problem solvers, well respected, positive, energetic, and confident. Agency Change Leaders who are trained in PROSCI (by the Workday (HRIS) Project or previously certified through PROSCI) are highly recommended to serve in this role for their respective agencies. Agency Readiness Contacts who are not PROSCI certified will have the Change Leaders in their program area to help them if they experience challenges accomplishing the above efforts. The workload and time commitment of this role is also somewhat unknown, as that will depend on the amount of work required by the efforts listed above. This too will provide them valuable experience and their work will prove to be very relevant to the agency's successful implementation of the system.

After implementation, the readiness contacts were continuously updated and have now become a supportive group of key communication partners who uphold the same commitments as they did during implementation of the Workday Project. The primary form of communication to the readiness contacts comes via the Workday Announcements and Workday Wednesday meeting recap notes. Enhancement requests, with agency leadership support, can be submitted through a Workday help ticket.
