Overview: Basic Emergency Vehicle Operator Instructor Course EVOIC #26

General Information:

The Department of Public Safety Standards and Training is offering an Emergency Vehicle Operations Instructor Development Course (EVOIC 26) August 14-25, 2017. This course is intended to develop certified instructors capable of delivering basic recruit Emergency Vehicle Operations (EVO) training for DPSST Basic Police and Regional Training programs.

The emphasis of EVOIC #26 will be to train individuals that will be readily available and willing to teach basic academy classes in Salem and to deliver regional training classes sponsored by DPSST throughout the state. Priority in selection will be given to applicants/agencies who demonstrate support of this mission by participation in the Basic Academy programs.

Applicants who are selected to participate as instructor candidates will be sent the EVOIC training materials in an electronic format at least 30 days prior to the start of the course. The candidate may print the information at their agency's expense.

NOTE: The candidate will be expected to pass a driving skill assessment at least two weeks prior to the beginning of the course. This qualification process will be conducted by a DPSST Senior Instructor at the DPSST facility in Salem and the candidate must achieve a minimum passing grade on the basic police qualification course.

Passing grades on a written test and a driving skills assessment will be required to complete the course. Candidates must score a minimum of 90% on the written assessment of DPSST EVO theory and techniques, instructor development materials, and general vehicle knowledge. All of the materials necessary for this written test will be provided electronically when a candidate is accepted to the course.

Candidates who are not successful with their driving skills assessment will be allowed additional opportunities on dates, however all assessments must be complete prior to August 4, 2017. Candidates failing to demonstrate the minimum driving assessment score will not be able to participate in this EVOIC.

Candidates are encouraged to visit one or more DPSST Basic Police EVO sessions prior to a testing session to brush up on their driving skills. This will give candidates some one-on-one time with senior instructors. A schedule of practice and testing dates are at the end of this announcement.

Additional Agency considerations/requirements:

1. Participation in a Basic Facilitator Course prior to this instructor course is highly recommended. Many of the instructional techniques used to deliver the EVO Instructor course will be presented and practiced during the Basic Facilitator Course.
2. Vehicles used during all driving exercises will be provided by DPSST.
3. Participants will be expected to sign a waiver of liability for DPSST.
4. All salaries and benefits of participants shall be borne by the agency. One of the training days will include an adjusted swing shift.
5. Agencies need to ensure that they have adequate insurance coverage covering participation in this training.
6. All candidates will be required to complete a minimum of ninety-six (96) hours of supervised "shadow" instruction to receive certification as a DPSST EVO Instructor.

This instruction will occur in conjunction with regularly scheduled EVO training at DPSST once the EVOIC is completed.

Any questions can be directed to Steve Westerberg; EVO Program Coordinator at the above address OR at 503-378-4412 OR via state email at steve.westerberg@state.or.us

Candidate Driving Practice / Testing Sessions:

Following are several dates that are available to candidates interested in honing their physical driving skills, spending time with a senior instructor, and looking at the EVO program at DPSST. Candidates can be tested on the same date as a practice is scheduled. Candidates are encouraged to attend at least one practice date prior to testing.

To schedule dates for practice and testing, contact Steve Westerberg via email at steve.westerberg@state.or.us or by telephone at 503-378-4412.

Overview: Program Focus: The 3-day Basic Tactical Medical Instructor Training Program is a highly intense training program requiring a physical demand on the student and consists of lecture, labs and skill practice. The Law Enforcement Officer will gain knowledge and skills necessary to mitigate the loss of their life or the life of another while in an active threat environment. The skills will address treating life threatening injuries in an austere environment with limited equipment, lack of medically trained personnel and prolonged time to evacuation. Tactical Medical is a systematic approach to dealing with casualties in a tactical environment. (It is strongly influenced by the model used by the Department of Defense called Tactical Combat Casualty Care (TCCC). As the name implies, TCCC incorporates tactical problem solving into any situation in which casualties are incurred from an armed, hostile opponent.)

Instructors:

Overview: International Association of Law Enforcement Firearms Instructors (IALEFI) - Master Instructor Development Course

The IALEFI Master Instructor Development Program (MIDP) was designed to provide continuing education to individuals certified as firearms instructors. Foundation courses of the MIDP include instructor level training on the three most commonly utilized law enforcement weapon systems----- handgun, rifle and shotgun.

Different proven methodologies will be used to enhance the teaching skills of the police firearms instructor. Hands-on skills will progress from the basics to the more complex and all participants regardless of skill level will find themselves challenged. Practical exercise will put an emphasis on both practical marksmanship and operational skills.

Throughout the 3 day program, participants will be shown a number of drills designed to improve the performance of both proficient and problem shooters. The information presented will prove especially useful in creating a positive training experience that will ultimately result in greater officer safety.

Topics covered:

- * range safety
- * review of shooting fundamentals/positions
- * operational skills
- * basic tactics such as movement, use of cover, light management, etc.
- * shooter remediation
- * adult learning concepts
- * coaching strategies
- * course design

The Handgun: This will be a handgun course aimed at building the instructional skills of the police firearms instructor. We will start with a review and discussion of the basics, including: stance, grip, sight, alignment, trigger control, follow through, holster placement, draw, presentation and scanning. Students will then be shown a series of drills and tools designed to improve problem shooters and enhance the skills of all their shooters.

The Rifle: The rifle / carbine portion of the Master Instructor Development Course is an 8-hour class. In the first half of the class emphasis will be placed on individual skill enhancement. Topics will include balancing speed and accuracy, multiple target engagements, dynamic moving and shooting, and bi-lateral shooting. In the second half of the course, the emphasis will be on instructor development for creating and conducting advance tactical multi-person live fire drills for the rifle / carbine operators. Students will participate in the drills as both a "student" and as an "instructor".

8/28-8/30/2017

Class Title: IALEFI Master Instructor Development Course

The Shotgun: Despite its tremendous utility value, the shotgun remains an underutilized and misunderstood tool. Many of the negative attitudes relative to the shotgun stem from improper training, and as a result officers never develop confidence in this particular weapon system. This block of instruction will explore alternate instructional techniques to make training with the shotgun a positive rather than negative experience

Overview: The Advanced Roadside Impaired Driving Enforcement (ARIDE) program was developed by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) with input from the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) Technical Advisory Panel (TAP) and the Virginia Association of Chiefs of Police. ARIDE was created to address the gap in training between the Standardized Field Sobriety Testing (SFST) and the Drug Evaluation and Classification (DEC) Program. ARIDE is intended to bridge the gap between these two programs by providing officers with general knowledge related to drug impairment and by promoting the use of DREs in states that have the DEC Program. One of the more significant aspects of ARIDE is its review and required student demonstration of the SFST proficiency requirements. This course will train law enforcement officers to observe, identify, and articulate the signs of impairment related to drugs, alcohol or a combination of both, in order to reduce the number of impaired drivers and impaired driving related traffic collisions. This course will train other criminal justice professionals (prosecutors, toxicologists, etc.) to understand the signs of impairment related to drugs, alcohol, or a combination of both and enable them to effectively work with law enforcement in order to reduce the number of impaired drivers and impaired driving related traffic collisions.

Instructors: George T. Williams & Thomas V. Bengel, Cutting Edge Training, L.L.C.

Overview: The only course of its kind designed only for law enforcement.

There's more to training your officers to fight with their firearms than teaching them simply how to shoot.

Following this training, you will be certified to instruct:

- Cutting Edge Fire-Discipline, Weapon Handling, Targeting, and More.
- Real-World Reactive Shooting to Hit Any Sudden Imminent Threat.
- Deadly Force Decision-Making and Articulation.
- Moving and Hitting an Imminent Threat.
- Unintentional Discharge Proofing.
- Real-World Live-Fire Combatives.
- Incorporating Cover as a Habit of Safety & De-escalation.
- Safer Contact & Cover Fire.

This firearms instructor training has been described as "The first real training for a gunfight I've ever had!" This course is not a re-hash of every other shooting instructor school you've attended. Instead, Cutting Edge Training looked at how real officers get murdered in the real world and how officers actually engage in gunfights. This course is about preparing your to officers fight and win, not simply how to shoot.

Overview: International Police Mountain Bike Association Police Cyclist Course

Bicycle officers need to ride whenever and wherever they are needed. Proper training is essential to an officer's on-the-job performance and safety. It is also critical in reducing liability. This course provides bicycle officers with the skills they need to effectively serve their communities. The course is divided into eleven units: Bike Handling & Vehicular Cycling, Bike Fit, Group Riding, Hazard Recognition & Common Crashes, Obstacle Clearing & Riding Techniques, Patrol Procedures, Nighttime Patrol, Community Policing, Basic Maintenance, Legal Issues & Traffic Laws, and Fitness & Nutrition. This demanding class involves over 20 hours of on-bike time to develop and improve riding skills. IPMBA Certification is available to sworn police officers who successfully complete the practical test, earn a score of 76% or better on the written test, become members of IPMBA, and submit applications for certification accompanied by the appropriate fee.

Prerequisites: Applicants must be police officers currently assigned to bike patrol, officers applying to become members of a bike unit, or members of a department considering use of the bicycle.

Registration: Requirements: The Complete Guide to Public Safety Cycling, second edition, available at IPMBA.org and a bike helmet, eye protection, bike from reputable manufacturer, and pedal retention devices.

Cost: The class is free, but sport drinks and water donations are welcomed to help offset the cost the department accrues.

Registration: Contact Officer Ryan Larson at 541-766-6431 or by e-mail: ryan.larson@corvallisoregon.gov

Cost: $795.00

Instructors: Ken Harmon and Greg Gravesen

Overview: This course is designed for experienced traffic crash investigators who have a good working knowledge of the techniques and applications of formulas taught in basic crash investigation courses and who wish to build upon that foundation with more advanced mathematical formulas used to analyze motorcycle crashes.

Various field tests will be conducted showing you a variety of motorcycle skids, accelerations and slide-to-stop drag factors. You will learn how to photograph skids and examine the subsequent effects that skids have on the tires and surfaces. Through these tests, you will gain valuable first-hand experience that can be beneficial in court proceedings.

You will be given a manual of applicable information to use as a motorcycle reference book.

Topics include:

- * Analyzing and interpreting the motorcycle crash scene
- * Determining acceleration and deceleration characteristics of the motorcycle
- * Analyzing and interpreting modes of instability and handling characteristics in motorcycles
- * Interpreting the operator factor
- * Reviewing motorcycle tires, helmets and other equipment
- * Using a practical application of formulas (projects)

Overview: DPSST has been selected to host the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC's) Leadership for Women in Law Enforcement class.

The LWLE is designed for women in law enforcement with a desire to further develop their leadership skills. The program provides a unique opportunity to examine leadership principles from the female law enforcement professionals perspective. The courses in this program are tailored to concentrate on issues and challenges common to female leaders in law enforcement such as Gender Differences and Work Life Balance. The program will facilitate open, candid discussions and exercises to identify and develop approaches to deal with common issues and challenges. The competency areas include leadership skills through understanding and adapting to human behaviors, communication skills, team building, situational decision-making skills, and emotional intelligence. Taking into consideration life and work experience, participants will explore these topics and develop skills by means of an adult learning model that employs lecture, laboratory, case studies and self-directed learning.

During the program, distinguished law enforcement executives will lead a panel discussion on participant-selected law enforcement leadership topics. Although the program focuses on Women in Law Enforcement, the leadership competencies developed will apply across the law enforcement community.

Overview: Law Enforcement and Victim Services Conference on Collaborative Mass Violence Response and Meeting the Needs of Underserved Victims of Crime Leave - No Victim Behind Part II

The University of Oregon Police Department and the California Victim Compensation Board are partnering to host a national conference focused on effective collaborative efforts between law enforcement and victim services when responding to victims of a mass violence incident. This conference will also focus on meeting the needs of underserved victims including the homeless, impoverished and LGBTQ community.

The first two grant recipients of the federal Antiterrorism and Emergency Assistance Program for 2017 are California, for the San Bernardino terrorist attack, and Oregon, for the Umpqua Community College shooting in Roseburg. The states of Oregon and California are committed to bringing together the best experts in the field to educate responders and providers so they are thoroughly prepared when a mass violence incident occurs in their local community. Victim service specialists, law enforcement, first responders, campus officials and emergency management professionals from around the country will discuss how to best meet the needs of victims of mass violence and terrorism. The body of collected wisdom that will result from this meeting will be significant as we work to anticipate the complicit needs of victims of future mass violence.

The conference will focus on how law enforcement and victim services can effectively work together when responding to victims of a mass violence event. Conference panels and speakers will include subject matter experts who have responded to incidents in the past, resource providers, and others with expertise on this topic.

The panels and speakers will highlight past responses to mass violence incidents, lessons learned, best practices, a live tabletop exercise presented by the FBI, development and review of effective joint law enforcement and victim services response models, crisis response resources and an action plan for building partnerships and expertise.

This conference will also feature proactive and culturally diverse community policing practices, criminal justice partnerships and provide police officers, victim advocates and district attorneys valuable information on how to best serve the needs of underserved community members with an emphasis on ensuring all victims of crime have access to the resources available at the federal, state, and local levels.

9/12-9/14/2017

Class Title: National Conference on Mass Violence Incidents & Underserved Victims

Responders to the Orlando nightclub massacre, the Boston Marathon bombing, the Sandy Hook school shooting in Connecticut, the the AME church shooting in South Carolina, the Sikh Temple shooting in Wisconsin, the UC Santa Barbara shooting rampage, and others, will speak at this conference. In addition, campus officials from various institutions such as Virginia Tech, the University of Oregon and Umpqua Community College will be instrumental in discussing campus approaches to violence and effective responses to victims. The federal Office for Victims of Crime (OVC) will also play a significant role in sharing about their experiences with the Anti-terrorism and Emergency Assistance Program, the grant application process and the development of the mass violence response toolkit as well as provide information regarding federal resources. OVC will also provide support through a scholarship program for attendees in need of financial assistance. On the final day of the conference true experts in the field of community policing will present ideas and concepts focused on building community partnerships while discussing the topic of Underserved Victims: Who Are They, Regionally and Nationally? How Can We Reach Them?

Attendees at this conference will include law enforcement, victim service providers, first responders, community based organizations, campus officials, crisis response teams and emergency management professionals. Anticipated attendance based on similar conferences in the past two years is expected to minimally reach 200 people from across the country.

Join us in the great Pacific Northwest as we explore ways together to better serve the needs of our communities.

PLEASE NOTE THAT THE DEADLINE FOR SCHOLARSHIP APPLICATIONS IS JULY 12, 2017. Limited scholarships for this conference may be available through the Office for Victims of Crime. Awards will be made based on need, to applicants whose organizations have insufficient funds to support their participation. Interested parties must contact OVC TTAC directly. Please visit the OVC TTAC Web site for more information, including eligibility criteria.

Scholarship applications must be received 60 days before the event which is July 12, 2017.

Overview: The Reno Police Training Officer (PTO) model is based on the teaching principles of Problem-Based Learning (PBL) and emphasizes the need for the PTO to function primarily as a trainer rather than as an evaluator. PBL is firmly established in the fields of medicine and education, where it is used to facilitate the transfer of knowledge. Similarly, in policing, recruits need to learn much more than just laws and police procedures. They must also understand how to transfer their academy knowledge effectively when dealing with individuals and issues within a community. As demands on police continue to increase, agencies must provide officers with the resources and the training necessary to fulfill their expanded role. This approach will help police recruits think about their roles and responsibilities as they approach specific problems in their daily work. Problem solving is an integral part of police work and requires a creative and flexible method of thinking.

The PBL model encourages flexibility and creativity and this training model is designed to emphasize community-oriented policing principles and leadership development and train new recruits to be problem-solvers as they enter the field. This model is adaptable to any discipline within the criminal justice system (Corrections, P & P, etc.).

Prerequisites:

Registration: Class size limited to 16 students. Agencies will be limited to two applications to start, additional applications will be placed on a waiting list. If submitting more than one application please indicate priority number on the applications.

Students must pre-register for this course. You must receive an e-mail from DPSST confirming you have been registered for this training in order to attend.

Registration forms may be obtained from DPSST's website at: <http://www.oregon.gov/dpsst> . On the right side of your screen hover over the Criminal Justice link, select Training, then click on the Regional and Advanced Training link. Click on the course registration app. link located on the left side of your screen.

Instructors: Jan Johnson, Forensic Pieces

Overview: The number one reason why most crime scene investigations are unsuccessful is because there was inadequate crime scene processing and analysis. Working a crime scene, whether major or minor, is a process that involves a wide range of skills. This 5-day course was developed as a refresher workshop for crime scene investigators, or for the new officer with limited exposure and experience in crime scene processing. The detection, collection, documentation, and preservation of physical evidence are key elements involved in every crime scene. This course will demonstrate and elaborate on techniques that may or may not have been acquired in the field, and will assist in developing new techniques in crime scene examinations. Forensic science is forever changing and improving, and new techniques and equipment are constantly being developed to assist the law enforcement officer with the challenges of the "every scene, every time" concept.

Overview: Interfacing Law, Neuroscience and Genetics to Support Child Sex Abuse Victims & Sex, Porn, and Manhood AND Digital Ethics

Topics 1 & 2:

1: Interfacing Law, Neuroscience and Genetics to Support Child Sex Abuse Victims

2: Sex, Porn, and Manhood

Speaker: W. Warren H. Binford

Professor Binford will be offering two sessions at our workshop. The first, "Interfacing Law, Neuroscience & Genetics," considers the research gap in understanding the possible biomarkers in childhood sexual abuse and the role that identifying those biomarkers could play in developing more effective legal remedies for those who suffer childhood sexual abuse. The second session, "Sex, Porn & Manhood," considers the emerging research on the impact of widespread exposure to pornography on young males and females and whether society's failure to limit access to pornography constitutes a violation of their rights under international law. Read Warren Bindford's Bio.

Topic 3:

Digital Ethics

Speaker: Roy Huggins, LPC, NCC

Mental health clinicians work to foster health in our clients wherever they are in the process, and we need the correct tools to help us do that. Myths abound about legally and ethically appropriate ways to meet client desires for email, texting and online video. We hear about the growing pressure to switch to electronic records and many of us already see the value in paperless practices. This training will take attendees from an exploration to our relationships with technology and "digital confidentiality," through how to appropriately use that technology in our practices ethically and in compliance with the HIPAA Security Rule. Go beyond the HIPAA checklists and join a technologist/professional counselor to

Overview: This course teaches that the employment relationship is an enforceable contract wherein management has inherent and enforceable rights. These rights include requiring employees to: attend work on a regular basis, give a fair days work, be subordinate, lawful to directives, perform to standards, get along with others and to be loyal to their employer's lawful business needs. The problem is that the traditional people-oriented style of management has been seriously weakened by 40 years of employee labor and employee rights laws. A performance-oriented model of management based on principles found in contract law, economics and Performance Theory is a more powerful, practical, simpler and enforceable alternative.

Overview: Performance Improvement Programs are well accepted by courts, arbiters, civil review boards and employees as a non-punitive means for dealing with employee performance deficiencies. They reduce the burden on management by placing the responsibility squarely on the employee's shoulders for improvement, reduces the basis for grievances because they are non-punitive methods for correcting deficient performance, and they provide a valid offense against claims of illegal discrimination.

Overview: This powerful one day training course will identify the top 100 mistakes made by detectives.

As a criminal investigator, resolution of the investigation is always the goal, regardless of whether it is the investigation of a burglary, theft, robbery, sexual assault or homicide. Mistakes are made every day by detectives all across the country. The humble investigator will not mind sharing his or her horror stories regarding this issue.

The trial process is the proving grounds for detectives because it's there where all the mistakes that were made during the investigation are discovered. Not only does this jeopardize the case, but a detective's career can be tarnished in a split second while on the witness stand.

The concept behind this course came from trial and error, court room experiences and help from hundreds of detectives. In addition, numerous prosecutors, defense attorneys, and judges were consulted to identify the most common mistakes made during a criminal investigation.

Instructors: Cutting Edge Training Staff

Overview: As an instructor course, this course is not about you. It is about training you to train your officers to be effective and to save their lives on the street while meeting constitutional requirements of objectively reasonable force.

Problem-solving is the foundation of all effective fighting--"techniques" just aren't successfully applied like on the mat--you knew that the first time you ever tried to apply that nifty wrist lock to someone who didn't understand how cool the technique was. The last fight you were in required you to figure out--under threat--how to take the suspect into custody.

When it comes to fighting, how do you learn to successfully "problem-solve" against a bigger, stronger, determined suspect. As an instructor, more importantly, how do you teach others to problem-solve?

This truly revolutionary concept forms the basis of the most effective method of teaching armed professionals to prevail in the very short period of time permitted for training. Centering on "Integrated Combatives Problem-Solving"(c) featuring the "Universal Rules and Principles of Combatives"(c), the application of simple yet effective physical skills, "Applied OODA Theory"(c), through the application of current legal and policy provisions for the force response, creates the formula to achieve problem-solving competency.

We provide simple-to-learn, simple-to-employ skills--with NO techniques--and combine them with universal rules and principles based on the natural reflexes and instincts that have helped humans survive for all of history. There is nothing to memorize and then forget in a week's time. We know there is no single "right way" to conclude any defense or control situation. We measure success in any defense situation by the following inflexible standards:

- * Did the officer prevail (preferably uninjured)--or, at least, survive?
- * Did the outcome of the incident meet constitutional, legal, and policy standards?
- * Was the officer able to take the subject into custody?

If the answer to each of these questions is "yes," then the officer did his/her job, and we did ours. We teach officers to do what officers do best: problem-solve force responses within a constitutional framework.

Developed from the street "in," NOT from the matroom "out."

10/16-10/20/2017

Class Title: Defensive Tactics Instructor: Integ. Combatives Prob. Solving T-t-T

No "martial arts" or high skill-based techniques are forced on officers in this program. Rather than taking complicated, contextually-critical techniques (specific defenses to specific attacks from cooperative partners) from the training floor and expecting them to work in the uncontrolled environment of the street, we base our program on the uncomplicated nature of the dynamic human response to conflict. We bring street reality and functionality "in" to the training for your benefit.

Average officers practice little and generally remember almost nothing of their complicated, martial arts-intensive training. Strong, skilled men generally develop training that is suited for big, strong, skilled men...however, this system works for them until they are confronted by another big, strong, skilled man--then they will need to problem-solve their way through this fight. All of your officers appreciate this system for its simplicity and tactically-sound approach to increasing their ability to effectively put hands on a resistive or even combative subject. Highly trained officers appreciate the depth of the system in answering questions of why they have been successfully performing--and for increasing their abilities to apply their previous training. Big or small, strong or weak, highly trained or relatively less-trained...all benefit greatly from our problem-solving approach.

How the Course Works

The "Integrated Combatives Problem-Solving: Train-the-Trainer" course is highly structured in its concept, with each block of instruction layered upon the foundation of all physical conflict problem-solving: the "Universal Rules and Principles of Combatives."(c) As the new instructor learns the concepts involved with Defensive Tactics, and then teaches it, the foundation for Police GroundCombatives training is laid. Police GroundCombatives leads to Arrest & Control, which leads to Real-World Weapon Retention, and so on through the entire course.

The following topics are the minimum in course content covered during this week-long instructor training course:

- * Constitutional Limits to the Police Force Response
- * Integrated Combatives Problem-Solving(c) Theory
- * Applied OODA Theory
- * M.A.P.S. Pre-Assault Indicators
- * Teaching Defensive Tactics and Combatives
- * Teaching Real-World Police GroundCombatives
- * Teaching Real-World Weapon Retention
- * Teaching Real-World Bladed Weapon Defense
- * Teaching Emergency Weapon Recovery
- * Teaching Tactical Arrest & Control
- * Teaching Multiple Officer Takedowns
- * Police Physical Training Skills Theory and Practice
- * Instructional Documentation Requirements

This course brings outstanding instructional skill to officer defense and subject control and arrest in a simple format that is constitutionally-based, tactically sound, effective, and easy to apply for every officer in your agency. This completely different process of bringing ordinary officers into the category of "competent police trainer" is something you'd expect from CUTTING EDGE TRAINING. We are the original, and, so far, the only police trainers to bring you training that is:

* Outcome-based: We train officers and their agency trainers to respond to every day threats --as well

10/16-10/20/2017

as extraordinarily dangerous circumstances--by employing "Integrated Combatives Problem-Solving"(c) featuring the "Universal Rules and Principles of Combatives,"(c) and "Applied OODA Theory."(c) The only determination of whether the officer's method of defense and control was "correct" is that the officer was not injured and survived, and his/her force response was legally reasonable and within policy--just like in the real-world of force evaluation and justification.

*Gross-motor skills dependent: We never forget that these lessons are applied in the real world of fear and hazard and consequence, where nothing ever goes as planned. We have the only system that depends solely upon gross-motor skills in our combatives problem-solving efforts. We employ zero techniques to be forgotten a week later. Instead, we provide simple to employ, effective skills that have a high likelihood of success in any combative circumstance.

*Non-Technical: "Techniques" are fine-motor skills that routinely fail in the street. We teach no techniques because techniques only work against willing police officers on the mat and small children. Instead, we teach you to solve your combatives problems using naturally hard-wired solutions that are easy for every officer, regardless of level of ability.

Overview: The suicide crime scene is one of the most difficult crime scenes to investigate. This crime scene carries with it the temptation to make an assumption of the cause of death as suicide long before the facts and available evidence can support that assessment.

The emotional impact of suicide on the surviving family members and friends often makes it more difficult to investigate than some homicide scenes. Rather than face the unpleasant truth that someone they loved resorted to an act of self-destruction, surviving family members and friends will believe that the investigator has reached the wrong conclusion. They believe that the investigation was conducted poorly, incompetently, or unprofessionally.

The detective conducting this crime scene investigation needs to be ready to have his or her work questioned by the surviving family of the victim. A crime scene that has been processed correctly will assist the detective in answering those questions.

This training will cover historical and cultural perspectives on suicide; categories of suicide; the correlation between depression and suicide; components of a successful investigation; evaluation of evidence, notes, and wounds at the suicide scene; and what to do when the deceased is another officer.

Overview: A deep exploration into the science and experience of mindfulness as it relates to resiliency, warrior ethos, and the hero's journey. With a focus on mindfulness skill building to enhance self-awareness, attunement to others, compassion, wisdom and peak performance. Attendees will learn skills that can be translated to their personal and professional life. This train model resources responders to take on the occupational stressors and trauma of their profession and learn to thrive through the arch of their hero's journey.

Richard Goerling is a police lieutenant and retired Commander in the U.S. Coast Guard Reserve. He has completed the yearlong mindfulness facilitator training at UCLA's Mindful Awareness Research Center. He is an Affiliate Assistant Professor within the Graduate School of Professional Psychology at Pacific University and is currently a co-investigator and trainer in a National Institute of Health funded research project training mindfulness to police officers. Richard is a national speaker on mindfulness and resiliency in policing a cultural transformation toward an authentic, compassionate Warrior ethos. Richard participates with multi-disciplinary teams that explore mindfulness, restorative justice, council practice and other holistic approaches to hearing and community building. Additionally, Richard is active in developing policing and community practices that effectively meet the needs of returning veterans and those with acute mental illness.

Brian Shiers has studied mindful awareness methods at the Gurdjieff Foundation Los Angeles since 1993, Tibetan Vajrayana Buddhist practices for over ten years, and has completed nine week-long retreats, logging in over 3,500 hours of both sitting and moving meditation. With a degree in Kinesiology and Exercise Science setting the foundation for embodied awareness, Brian has completed the year-long facilitator training at UCLA's Mindful Awareness Research Center (MARC) under the direction of Diana Winston, Dr. Susan Smalley, and Dr. Marvin Belzer. As a member of MARC's faculty, Brian now teaches the signature MAP's I and II programs for UCLA MARC, as well as serving as a Mindfulness Coach to the Bruin Women's Varsity Volleyball Team, and has brought mindfulness to the workplace at Disney Animation Studios, Mattel Inc., and Salesforce.com. Brian earned his Master's in Mindfulness and Psychotherapy from Phillips Graduate Institute.

Overview: The Force Science Basics Course is designed to clearly present, in a practical and understandable fashion, the results of the most cutting edge research into the dynamics of human behavior during life-threatening encounters. The class will explore Force Science, the application of unbiased scientific principles and processes in repetitive physical experiments designed to determine the true nature of suspect provocation and officer response (action-reaction dynamics). The goal of the program is to encourage law enforcement professionals to apply the important concepts revealed in this research when investigating, reconstructing, recalling or otherwise analyzing a use of force. The integration of this information has been proven to enhance the accuracy and thoroughness of decisions made relative to behavior and performance during the incident.

Overview: This course takes the position that the responsibility for quality-control enforcement in an organization depends on the loyalty and abilities of its first first-line supervisors. Effective supervisors are those that know when to motivate, when to lead, when to discipline, when to subordinate, and when to just get out of the way. Attendees are taught the legal and fiduciary responsibilities of a first-line supervisor, how to build a positive supervisor to subordinate relationship, how to apply basic principles of employee motivation, leadership and performance management to day-to-day performance problems. How to establish accountability with the difficult employee, how to conduct a problem-solving conference and document a plan for performance improvement.

Instructor: John Detchon has 38 years' experience as a sworn office, serving five years with a major state highway patrol and 32 years with a sheriff's department. John is a former detective, 911, jail and patrol operations commander. He has conducted IA investigations for 15 years while serving as a division on commander in various assignments. He is a graduate of the Ohio State Highway Patrol Academy, Ohio Peace Officers Academy, Attended Kent State University and is a certified corrections academy instructor and Ohio Police Basic instructor.

Overview: Balancing Perception & Reality: Led by two of the nation's top trainers, this two-day event is designed to prepare students psychologically, emotionally and tactically for their roles as law enforcement professionals in modern society. Participants will examine the current relationship between law enforcement and the community they are sworn to protect while also identifying the most current threats to both. Finally, officers will learn how their attitudes and personal perspectives could mean the difference between life and death in both violent confrontations and living as a law enforcement officer on and off the job.

Topics covered:

- * Pre-Incident Preparation
- * Current Threats and Criminal Behavior
- * Police Violence: Facts vs. Myths
- * Detecting Deception
- * The Sheepdog Mentality
- * Reality vs. Media Hype

Overview: Each of the four class modules focuses on a different subject and includes a half-day of lecture-based studies, followed by a half day in the field doing deployment drills. Unlike many classes on this topic, the state-of-the-art deployment tactics taught in this class come direct from the manufacturer of the products used. Students have the option of taking each module individually, or registering for all four modules for a discounted price of $895. Upon completion of the course and successfully passing the final exam, the student is allowed to provide in-service training to their agency in specific areas for 36 calendar months from the testing date.

In each topic, the student will receive a CD containing the PowerPoint program used in each course. These CDs contain material and video to be utilized by the student when for training in their own departments.

Inside the Tape has been committed to providing quality training to law-enforcement agencies since 2001 without raising tuition rates or cancelling classes. We have added more in depth topics and several new case reviews to our program which continues to receive high marks from law enforcement agencies at all levels across the country, and has been used as a model for homicide scene management by agencies such as the Cincinnati, Austin, Detroit, Atlanta and St Paul Police in Minnesota. Several agencies contract our program out for in-service training and have implemented our methodologies and crime scene management principles with great success resulting in higher clearance and conviction rates.

The instructor for this training course will be investigator David Newman (RET) from the Norfolk Police Department in Virginia. Investigator Newman began his career in law enforcement in 1984 and retired from Norfolk in late 2008. His experience with the Norfolk P.D. includes over 15 years in the bureau serving in homicide & forensics and involvement in over 500 death investigations and high profile homicides. While serving in forensics he has investigated over 2500 cases including an additional 65 homicide investigations and over 500 crime scenes.

Cost: see 'Registration'

Instructors:

Overview: This course covers the essentials patrol officers, investigators, P&P officers, SRO's and anyone in the criminal justice system needs to know about social networking whether they use it or not. Various types of crime are rooted in social networking activity, including drugs, scams, identity theft, flash mobs, sexting, sextortion, cyber bullying, even school shootings. This training class will break down the elements of social networking, examine what information is collected, and demonstrate what a great investigative/intelligence tool it can be. Information regarding investigative leads, relationships, communications, photographs, location, etc. is all available and many times open source. In addition, attendees will learn the proper methods of authenticating information they collect.

Social networking has also created a number of problems for law enforcement, especially in matters of safety for officers and their families. Social media sites exist where both officer and informant information is posted. Criminal organizations collect photos and bio material of officers and share that information via social media. This class will delineate steps officers should take to safeguard their information while utilizing social media for investigative work, as well as in their personal lives.
