

RANSOM SPIRITS

Ransom Spirits was started by Tad Seestedt in 1997 with a small life savings and a fistful of credit cards. Initially, the distillery made small amounts of grappa, eau de vie and brandy. Ransom took up the craft of grain-based spirits in 2007, adding gin, whiskey and vodka to the lineup. In addition to spirits, Ransom has produced a variety of fine wine since 1999. In 2010, they combined our crafts of winemaking and distilling to create their first Dry Vermouth.

Ransom distills spirits in a hand-hammered, direct-fired French alembic pot still, making all of the selective cuts by taste and smell, without the use of computers or robots. This labor intensive, traditional method of distillation retains greater aromatic intensity and body from the raw materials selected with such great care.

Ransom Spirits strives daily to embody their core values of historicity, craftsmanship, and terroir. In working hard every day to make products that speak to another time and place, they believe that they have created highly aromatic spirits with the weight, richness, and complexity of their predecessors which also speak meaningfully to a new provenance; the green foothills of the Oregon Cascades, where an exciting new tradition of artisan distilling is springing to life.
