The consultant team wishes to extend a special thank you to the dedicated volunteers, friends, and other interested community citizens whose interest in the project made the second phase of the inventory possible.

We also wish to thank the staff at the NWDA office who have shared their office and expertise with the team members during the past year.

Many hours of research and writing were conducted by our community volunteers: Norine Dietrich, Claudia Knapp, Nick Knapp, Mary Ann Neeland, and Lee Puckett. We appreciate their contribution of time and talent to make this neighborhood project a reality.

We also appreciate the excellent newspaper coverage by The Northwest Examiner. Allan Classen, Editor and Publisher, has been very supportive of the project.

Introduction

The Cultural Resource Inventory and the summary report represents a major step by the Northwest District Association (NWDA) towards development of a comprehensive Cultural Resource Protection Plan. The purpose of the inventory is to provide a data base which will serve as a management guide for the neighborhood's cultural resources and assist the City and Landmarks Commission in future preservation policies, planning, and development. The inventory will also provide the City with an informational base for potential individual National Register of Historic Places nominations, National Register Historic Districts and/or local Conservation Areas.

The project is also a major step by the State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) towards compliance with the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 (NHPA), which requires the SHPO to survey and inventory cultural resources throughout the state. The project will also be used by the City of Portland to meet the state's land use goals as outlined in LCDC's Goal 5. The data will serve as a basis for updating the Goal 5 element of the City's Comprehensive Plan. The completed inventory will be on file at the City and SHPO.

The project was conducted from November 1991 through August 1992 by Prohaska and Associates and Donovan and Associates, preservation consulting firms, under contract with NWDA. The project, the Cultural Resource Inventory of Northwest Portland, has been financed in part with federal funds by the National Park Service, Department of Interior, as provided through the State Historic Preservation Office and in part by NWDA.

The following summary report presents the findings of the survey and inventory of historic resources within the 1992 study area. The study area includes all properties at least fifty years old which have not been substantially altered. The study area is roughly bounded by the NW Sixteenth Street on the east, NW Marshall Street on the south, NW Thurman Street on the north, and NW Twenty-eighth on the west. The project is the second phase of a three phase inventory. Phase I was completed in August 1991. At that time, a Historic Context Statement was completed for Northwest Portland.

The project encompassed four major phases: literature search, architectural survey work, historic research, and evaluation. Each of these areas will be discussed in more depth in the Methodology Section of the report.

The Northwest Cultural Resource Inventory forms are evolving documents. They will require regular updating and review. Resources eliminated may be included at a later date if the resource undergoes restoration or more historic information is gathered on the resource. Properties which no longer meet the eligibility requirements should be removed from the inventory.

Methodology

The NW Portland Cultural Resource Inventory began in November 1991 and was completed in August 1992. The project consisted of four major phases 1) Literature search and review of existing documents 2) Architectural field investigation 3) Historic research on individual buildings 4) Evaluation and Summary Report.

1) Literature Search: A search was conducted to catalogue available historic literature which might be useful in the preparation of the inventory. Resources at the Oregon Historical Society, the Multnomah County Assessor's Office, The City of Portland Building Department, the Multnomah County Library, and previous histories of the area were checked for applicable sources. The 1984 Portland Inventory and the 1991 NW Portland Historic Inventory were checked for associated historic material.

2) Architectural Field Investigation: A windshield investigation was conducted which involved compiling a list of all the buildings over 50 years old within the study area. Buildings which were extensively altered were excluded from further research but noted on a list of "Excluded" buildings (see Appendix F). No field documentation or historic research was conducted on these buildings.

After a list was compiled by street of the resources included in the survey, each building was architecturally documented and photographed. A site plan and vicinity map was also drawn for each property. The City permit files were checked to record any alterations to the buildings. Construction dates were obtained from the county assessor's office and verified if possible. All architectural data, current owner information, and the legal description were entered into the data base. The data base could be sorted by each field such as by date, style and rank (see Appendix B, C, and D). This data provided the information depicted on the first page of the inventory form. The photograph, site plan, and vicinity map were compiled on the last page of the inventory form for each building.

3) Historic Research: A title search was conducted on each property on the list compiled in the architectural survey. The title research was conducted to 1942, the 50 year cut off date. The owner's names were then entered in the data base and sorted alphabetically. Each owner was then researched at the county library and local history books. The city, county, and state history books were researched for biographies. The historic information was inserted into notebooks which were indexed by owner's name.

A chain of title was established for each property from the time the building was constructed into the 1940s. A short biography was written from the biographical information compiled. This information comprised the second page (sometimes third and fourth) of the inventory forms. If no historic information was found, the notation "no biographical information is known at this time" was entered after the name of the owner. As information becomes available, biographies can be updated and inserted on the form.

4) Evaluation and Final Report: Evaluation criteria was developed from guidelines established by the National Park Service for evaluation for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places, and the ranking system used by the State Advisory Committee on Historic Preservation. The form (see Appendix E) was developed from the evaluation sheets previously used in the cities of Hood River, Astoria, Sherwood, and Gresham.

An evaluation committee was organized for the purpose of evaluating each property as to its significance. The committee consisted of a liaison from the NWDA board, an architect, neighborhood residents, and the lead consultants.

Each property was evaluated and ranked based on Historic Considerations, Architectural Considerations, Physical Integrity and Site Integrity. A numerical value was given to each category based on various areas within each category. The resources were then ranked on a point system that follows:

Primary	40 points or up
Secondary	30 to 39
Contributing	20 to 29
Not included	19 and under

The points were tallied and a rank of Primary, Secondary, and Contributing were given to each property. The following ranking are described as:

Primary Significance: Individually the most important properties in the city as identified by their outstanding architectural qualities, historical associations, or relation to the environment. These properties may be eligible for local Landmark status or the National Register of Historic Places.

Secondary Significance: Properties which are not exceptional but are important based on their architectural, historical, or environmental criteria. Properties may be eligible for local Landmark designation or the National Register of Historic Places.

Contributing Significance: Buildings which provide the setting for more important buildings and which enhance the character of the neighborhood, properties associated with people or events of some importance, or which show various stages in the development of the city. These properties may be eligible for local Landmark designation or would contribute to a local Conservation District or National Register District.

A Primary or Secondary ranking does not mean that a property has been designated a local Landmark or listed in the National Register. Designation as a Local Landmark must await further action by property owners, the City and/or the Landmarks Commission. Listing for the National Register must be recommended by the State Advisory Committee on Historic Preservation and approved by the U.S. Department of the Interior. Listing in the inventory does not guarantee National Register designation or local listing.

Observations

The residential area in the Phase II (August 1992) study area has a high concentration of significant buildings. There are 292 resources cited in the 1992 study. The study area comprises the northern portion of the neighborhood. A number of the oldest structures in NW Portland are located in the study area. These early residences depict various periods of development from the early Railroad and Industrial Growth Period to WWII. Many of the prominent business people resided in these houses. The majority of the buildings in the study area, with the exception of some commercial buildings, are residential in character.

The following observations depict the buildings included in the inventory, not the total number of buildings in the study area. Not all the buildings in the study area are listed in the historic inventory. The observations are framed in the State Historic Preservation Office's periods of settlement and growth.

Railroad and Industrial Growth (1866-1883)

The earliest buildings in the study area date from the Railroad and Industrial Growth Period; there are only four properties dating from this period (see Appendix B). The buildings were constructed in 1875 and 1880. These properties depict the early settlement period of the neighborhood when the area was emerging as a prominent residential neighborhood. The houses were designed with elements of the Queen Anne, although a vernacular adaptation of the style. The four buildings are listed as Primary resources.

Progressive Era (1884-1913)

There are 180 properties in the study area dating from the Progressive Era, 1884 to 1913. This marks the period when the area began developing at a rapid rate. Many well known merchants built houses in the neighborhood. Over one half of the properties in the Phase II study area were constructed during this period. This era of physical growth can be subdivided into two shorter periods defined by the Portland business cycles. The years from 1884 through 1893 were marked by a wave of economic growth and land development. The 1893 depression was followed by a slow recovery period. The second surge of growth was spurred by the Lewis and Clark Exposition, starting in 1903. The exposition's successful run in 1905 ushered in a boom that crested in the mid-1911 to 1912 before the city entered a recession in the mid-1910s.

1884 to 1902

The majority of the 67 buildings constructed during this period reflect the Queen Anne and Vernacular Queen Anne styles and range in date from 1884 to 1902. Other styles represented in this period include the Arts and Crafts, Colonial Revival, Commercial, Craftsman, Craftsman/Classic Box, Dutch Colonial Revival, Gothic Revival, Italianate, Western Falsefront and Shingle. There is one National Register building from this period (2359 Overton Street) and 49 of these buildings are Primary resources.

1903 to 1912

The next period, 1903 to 1912, marks the years of tremendous growth in Northwest Portland. One-hundred and ten buildings were constructed during this period in the inventory with the largest number being built between 1903 to 1908. The most prevalent styles during this period were the Arts and Crafts (20 examples), the Craftsman/Classic Box (19 examples), the Craftsman (16 examples), and the Colonial Revival (15 examples) style. Other styles represented in the period are the Bungalow, Commercial, Dutch Colonial Revival, Queen Anne/Vernacular, Tudor, Vernacular and Western Falsefront. Singular examples of styles represented include the American Renaissance, Classical, Gothic Revival, Jacobethan, Prairie Style, Shingle, and Stripped Classical. Fifty-five of these buildings are listed as Primary resources in the inventory.

Motor Age (1913 to 1940)

During the Motor Age, automobiles changed the face of Northwest Portland. Many auto related businesses infiltrated the neighborhood and apartment buildings began to be constructed at a rapid rate. Building materials began to shift from brick to concrete, especially evident in the commercial buildings and multi-family residents. Only 11 buildings were constructed from 1913 to WWI. The recession in the mid-1910s and WWI slowed construction in the area.

Another building boom occurred in the 1920s. Ninety-one buildings were constructed from 1920 to 1929. The Bungalow, Colonial, English Cottage, Mediterranean, and Norman Farmhouse were the most popular styles constructed during this period. Other styles represented include the American Renaissance, Arts and Crafts, Classical, Commercial, French Chateausque, Spanish Colonial Revival, Stripped Classical, Tudor, and Vernacular style. Forty-three of these buildings are Primary resources.

The Great Depression once again slowed building in Northwest Portland. From 1930 to 1941, twenty buildings were constructed. These buildings reflect the English Cottage, Gothic Revival, Norman Farmhouse, Mediterranean, Dutch Colonial, Stripped Classical, Moderne, Commercial and Minimal Tract styles. Ten of these buildings are Primary resources.

The residential buildings in the study area depict a good cross-section of the various styles found in Northwest Portland. The resources reflect the building trends and the economy of the city historically, and represent some of the oldest resources in the neighborhood. Out of a total of 292 resources in the Phase II Historic Inventory, there are two National Register buildings, 151 Primary resources, 120 Secondary resources, and 19 Contributing resources.

Treatment Strategies/Recommendations

The development of treatment strategies is based on the need to prepare preservation plans to insure the protection of the historic resources. Treatment activities must be built upon broad foundations of support from local governments, governing agencies and state planning levels. Treatment strategies for inventories properties should be integrated into a comprehensive cultural resource management plan. The following recommendations are preservation strategies which will assist NWDA and the City of Portland in achieving their goals and priorities.

1. National Register of Historic Places: Encourage individual National Register nominations. Each National Register property could serve as a valuable interpretive resource that would benefit the neighborhood and the city, and serve as a guide for future preservation programs.
2. The NW Portland Cultural Resource Inventory and subsequent historic inventories will be constantly changing as new information is discovered. It will require regular updating and review. Resources that are not included in the inventory may be included at a future time, and others may be removed if they no longer meet the eligibility requirements.
3. Continue to solicit grant monies for matching grants from the SHPO to complete an intensive level historic inventory for all resources within the NWDA neighborhood boundary.
4. Utilize the information in the 1991 and 1992 NW Portland Cultural Resource Inventory to develop strategic plans and programs specifically in the areas of community and economic development, planning, tourism, marketing, promotional and special events.
5. Delineate potential residential National Register Districts or Multiple Property Nominations from information compiled in the 1991 and 1992 Cultural Resource Inventory. Establish a National Register Historic District (s), Conservation Districts, and/or Multiple Property Nominations. NW Portland retains a high number of significant building dating from the Railroad and Industrial Growth Period, Progressive Age, and Motor Era. The establishment of a district will provide some level of protection for the historic buildings along with drawing tourism year around to the area. Historic Districts also instill a sense of pride in the surrounding environment and often encourage revitalization and rehabilitation of the buildings in the district.
6. Encourage adaptive reuse of vacant building. Adaptive reuse is an appropriate alternative as long as the character defining features of the resource remain intact. Encourage the support for rehabilitation of significant buildings in the study area.
7. Public Awareness/Education: Encourage the distribution of informational material such as brochures and flyers to increase the publics awareness about the value of the historic resource in the community. Encourage local historical societies to organize interpretative displays or develop walking tours of the historic resources in the area. Conduct public workshops for property owner for appropriate rehabilitation techniques.

8. Encourage the development of a comprehensive tourism development plan for significant historic buildings.
9. Support the use of federal tax credits for rehabilitation of income producing properties.
10. Encourage property owners of National Register properties to consider making application for the Oregon Special Assessment Program which allows owners to freeze property taxes for a fifteen year period.
11. Establish a neighborhood Advisory Committee on Historic Preservation to help guide design review within the neighborhood and act as an advisory committee to the Portland Landmarks Commission.
12. Encourage appropriate alterations which do not destroy the architectural features of the historic resource.
13. Encourage the retention of the physical characteristics of the historic streetscape which include landscape features, form, massing, and setback. Garage additions should be sensitive to the historic resource and its surroundings.
14. Publish educational books/pamphlets on historic properties in the neighborhood.
15. Develop incentives for historic property owners on a local level.
16. Incorporate all new or updated information into the computerized data base files.
17. Provide planners and other compliance reviewers with information on inventoried properties for use in planning and review procedures.
