

I have a carbapenemase-producing organism.

When caring for me:

- * Use gown and gloves (contact precautions).
- * Perform hand hygiene before/after my care.

Things to Know

CPOs are a type of bacteria (germs) that have become highly resistant to antibiotics (medicine).

CPOs are not spread through the air. They spread by contact with a person with a CPO, or fluids from their wounds or stool (poop). Wash your hands often.

Healthcare staff will take extra measures when caring for you to keep from spreading the germs to others.

You may have a CPO for a very long time. Not everyone who has a CPO feels sick. Your doctor will let you know if you need treatment.
