EMPLOYER IGNITION INTERLOCK DEVICE (IID) EXCEPTION

Oregon Revised Statute (ORS) 813.602 states a person convicted of driving under the influence of intoxicants (DUII) or a person entering into a DUII diversion agreement shall be required to install and use an approved IID in any vehicle operated by the person.

ORS 813.606 states if a person is required, in the course and scope of the person's employment, to operate a motor vehicle owned by the person's employer, the person may operate that vehicle without an IID if:

- The employer has been notified that the employee is required to install an IID; and
- The employee has proof of the notification and a valid driver license or valid hardship/probationary permit in their possession while operating the employer's vehicle in the course of employment.

NOTE: A person who is self-employed is NOT eligible for an Employer IID Exception.

EMPLOYER:

- Complete and sign Section 1, "Employer Exception From IID Requirement."
- Give Copy to employee.

Note: If employee has been issued a hardship permit and is no longer required to drive vehicles registered to your company, complete Section 2, "Notification of Termination of Exception" and send a copy to DMV.

EMPLOYEE: You must carry a copy of this exception signed by your employer, in addition to a valid driver license or valid hardship/probationary permit, at all times when operating vehicles registered to your employer while driving for employment purposes.

To obtain the ending date of your IID requirement, call Customer Assistance at (503) 945-5000.
