Southbound Interstate Bridge inspection

Controlled weight tests to continue on Thursday, Nov. 1

A contractor for the Oregon Department of Transportation plans to continue conducting stress tests on the southbound Interstate Bridge span tomorrow (Thursday, Nov. 1). Inspection crews will do approximately 8 controlled weight test runs across the southbound bridge from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Thursday.

During each inspection run, southbound I-5 traffic will undergo a rolling slowdown, resulting in minimal delays to motorists. The rolling slowdown will allow inspectors to determine stress levels provided by several ODOT trucks crossing several points on the southbound span. The inspections began on Wednesday, Oct. 31, and are expected to be completed on Thursday.
