DEBRIS FLOW WARNING CANCELED FOR OREGON 6

The Oregon Department of Forestry (ODF) has canceled its debris flow warning for Oregon 6 (the Wilson River Highway). The ODF issued the warning at 6 p.m. Monday, Jan. 9. The warning was canceled at 10 a.m. this morning.

The affected area along Oregon 6 stretched from milepost 5 to milepost 39.

A debris flow warning means that dangerous, rapidly-moving landslides are very likely. While the debris flow warning remains in effect, people and travelers in the affected areas may be in imminent threat of serious injury and should take immediate precautions.

Upon the issuance of the debris flow warning, the Oregon Department of Transportation activated its debris flow warning system to notify travelers: Flashing lights mounted on signs on the roadside at either end of the affected area were turned on. They read:

“POSSIBLE LANDSLIDES BETWEEN M.P. 39 AND M.P. 5 WHEN LIGHTS FLASH”

Those signs are no longer flashing.
