

Continuing Education in Cultural Competency

The Oregon State Board of Nursing is committed to the principle that Oregon citizens should receive high quality health care delivered in a culturally competent manner. This principle is reflected in the Nurse Practice Act (NPA), which requires the licensed nurse to engage in nursing practice that is responsive to the cultural values, beliefs, and customs of the client and to consider the training, experience and cultural competence of any person to whom activities within the client care plan may be assigned or delegated.

The Board recognizes that curricula in Oregon schools of nursing now incorporate instruction in culturally competent health care, and that employers and providers throughout Oregon regularly include such ongoing education to their staff.

It is the Board's position to support these efforts and to maintain adherence to the principles set forth in the NPA. In addition, through individual interaction with licensees, and through its print and electronic publications, the Board will continue to share educational opportunities offered by State or National organizations and to set scope and standards for the delivery of culturally responsive nursing care in Oregon.
