HB 3321 PRIMARY PREVENTION ANALYSIS

Presented by Third Horizon

Background: HB 3321 (2025) directed the Alcohol and Drug Policy Commission (ADPC) to review Oregon's primary substance use disorder (SUD) system, including an inventory of programs and an analysis of how they are funded. Findings will be shared with legislative health committees.

Methodology and Program Inventory:

Tym Rourke provided an overview of the methodology, which covers the 2023–25 biennium and includes a forward look at 2025–27. Youth prevention is a primary stated goal. The inventory identified:

- 265 primary prevention programs meeting the statutory definition.
- 41 recognized, named evidence-based curricula or models.
- 37 local, innovative, or grassroots practices.

Financial Analysis: The Committee reviewed funding sources, administering agencies, and recipient types, including state staff, subrecipients, and contractors. The Oregon Department of Education, OLCC, and OHA, primarily the Public Health Division (PHD), are the largest funders of primary prevention. There is no recurring funding source dedicated exclusively to primary prevention, and most funding sources are blended rather than braided. Community funding often goes unreported and is not captured in state records, creating challenges in tracing funding sources to services.

The analysis mapped $66.6 million in prevention-related funding for 2023–25, of which $32.1 million was verified as primary prevention funding. Approximately $13 million in primary prevention funding reaches communities.

Workforce:

Oregon has 57 Oregon-based Certified Prevention Specialists (CPS), with 14 of 36 counties having no CPS on record. Barriers to obtaining or maintaining CPS credentials include travel distances, costs, limited awareness, insufficient staff coverage, and unclear compensation or job-related benefits.

Recommendations:

Tym Rourke presented Third Horizon's recommendations based on survey results. Recommendations included reviewing policies to establish a funding source that supports the full continuum of prevention services, examining funding sources to address restrictions tied to individual substances, and establishing a universal definition of prevention for consistent programmatic application.

The ADPC's financial analyses are retrospective. Third Horizon also recommended incorporating prospective financial analyses to support future planning and funding decisions.

DEBRIEF OF 2023-25 STATE FINANCIAL SPENDING ANALYSIS AND HB 3321 ASSESSMENT

Commission Discussion

The Commission discussed Third Horizon's Primary Prevention Analysis survey results and recommendations.

Commissioner Caroline Cruz commented on the importance of grounding prevention efforts in science and provided positive feedback on the review of primary prevention strategies. She noted that data demonstrates primary prevention's effectiveness in reducing substance use and asked how prevention strategies could be better integrated across systems.

Commissioner Stacie Andondiadis highlighted the importance of family and community health roles in prevention, including brief intervention and referral to treatment. Sharon Dursi Martin asked questions regarding the program inventory.

Commissioner Kati Jokinen requested that OHA provide a crosswalk identifying which prevention activities are currently eligible for Medicaid reimbursement and which require dedicated non-Medicaid funding. She also asked which activities would require policy changes or amendments to the state plan.

COMMITTEE UPDATES

Presented by Committee Chairs

Health and Safety Interventions:
The committee reviewed harm reduction spending as part of the broader financial analysis. Members will work with the group reviewing BHRN spending and continue wrapping up work on the Naloxone Toolkit. The committee is also planning its priorities for 2027. Sarah Knupinski will join the committee's co-chair leadership team.
Next committee meeting: October 27, 2026

Treatment:
The committee continues to focus on practical changes to improve access to timely, effective treatment across Oregon. A provider survey will be released to gather information about treatment access, capacity, and barriers that may not be captured in existing state data. Members will be asked to help distribute the survey.

The committee will also examine responsibilities within the treatment system and identify barriers, supports, and changes needed to strengthen accountability. The November committee meeting was proposed for cancellation due to the holiday, with members encouraged to participate in the Commission's Medicaid spending discussion instead. Budget considerations are expected to resume in December.
Next committee meeting: October 14, 2026

Recovery:
The Committee continues work on Recovery Community Centers (RCCs). Youth Recovery Center definitions have been approved. The Committee is analyzing Measure 110 spending to categorize expenditures. The November committee meeting is canceled; the RCC Measures and Behavioral Health Resource Network (BHRN) workgroups will meet in November.
Next committee meeting: CANCELLED

OYAA:
The committee did not meet in September while members participated in youth treatment and recovery events across the state. Youth identified potential priorities for 2027, including juvenile justice, recovery schools, and family recovery. Committee members also presented at a workforce conference in Pendleton.

Next committee meeting: October 14, 2026

Prevention:

The committee will continue exploring the proposed Center of Prevention Excellence, including its governance, structure, and potential role in supporting prevention services and the workforce.
Next committee meeting: October 28, 2026
