LEADERSHIP PROGRAMS

Not all managers are leaders, and not all leaders are managers. The following programs – some designed for managers, and some designed for employees at all levels – focus on helping participants become transformational, self-aware leaders. Through self-reflection and external feedback, participants will develop skills to mature into leaders who inspire, challenge, and motivate others. Trainings focus on helping participants master their own self-confidence and motivation to promote the development of others.

EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT

Employee engagement is defined as employees using discretionary effort. Engagement is not a one-way street. It is a combination of individual motivation plus organizational resources that produce engagement. The programs below provide training to both individuals and managers to better engage in work and life.

Sponsoring Agency	Program	Target Audience	Focus	Curriculum Structure	Application Process
