In many or most instances the attached EULA will be sufficient, however you will need to follow the directions below to verify.

As the EULA is just a part of the licensing that is used by Corel the purchaser must review the product specific documents/licenses to verify there are no clauses that are repugnant.

Things to consider include but are not limited to, data ownership, use of agency data, etc..

For any purchase over $150,000.00 you will need to consider any additional licensing for the specific product and if there are additional licenses or terms send them to DOJ for Legal Sufficiency Review.

If you do need legal sufficiency review please attach the approved EULA and notify the attorney that the EULA was approved by Mark Williams on January 29, 2018
