OTHER ISSUES

Pilot Project #100 Status Report from Dr. Brandon Schwindt

Pilot Project #100: allows Dental Health Aide Therapists (DHAT), a new mid-level provider, to practice in tribal dental clinics. The project is sponsored by the NW Portland Area Indian Health Board and allows a DHAT to perform about 50 procedures ranging from placing sealants to performing simple extractions. The DHAT is trained in a two-year post-high school program in Alaska. Dr. Schwindt reported that there are serious concerns with Pilot Project #100. He continues to be greatly concerned by the standard of care patients are receiving as a part of this pilot project. He is equally concerned with Oregon Health Authority (OHA) and Legislative lack of understanding of the importance of these issues and their role in protecting the public. In his opinion, tribal members do not deserve lesser care than they would receive otherwise from a practitioner licensed by this Board. I will continue to advocate for patient safety throughout this process. Dr. Schwindt has asked the OHA to amend their definition of "Patient Harm" to reflect current dental standards. He will continue to voice concerns as needed and participate as able. He encourage the Board to stay informed and engaged on this issue. While he understands that the Board of Dentistry has no statutory authority in these projects, it is the Board's role to protect the public when they go into a dental office.

Board Protocol Changes – Proposed Additions and Revisions

The Board's protocols originated about 18 years ago to standardize the details of particular disciplinary actions and reduce the wording necessary for Board motions. For example, the details for consent orders involving substance use disorder can be two or more pages long. The protocols also assist staff in recommending actions to the Board.

The Board last updated its protocols in June 2015. The writers prepared the attached draft of Board protocols for its consideration. This draft addresses concerns expressed about the level of disciplinary action in some areas, proposes additional protocol items, and cleans up language.
