The Mining Journal August 15 1937

The J. Gould quartz mine located 40 miles from Baker, Oregon, is being re-opened and placed in condition for operation in the spring of 1938. There is a 270-foot crosscut which opens a ledge for 210 feet. Assays from this ledge are said to average $70 a ton. The mine, which has been closed down for the past 25 years, is owned by Ross D. Traylor of Pendleton, Oregon, and his wife.
