

School Kit On Fossils

Harry Drew, Klamath County Museum curator, inspects the first of five new school kits, foot lockers with wheels on one end for easy movement. The initial kit contains information on fossils, particularly the type found in this area. Included is a book and three trays of fossil samples. The kits are available for school, group or organizational use, according to Drew, who said other kits will be developed in coming weeks on the Modoc War, Indians, minerals and pioneers. A cassette tape system for narrative history will be added later.
