The MINING JOURNAL - Feb. 26, 1944
(Original)

Daily production of 30 tons of ore is reported to be coming from the Santiam copper mines where a 50-ton mill was completed in January and this will be gradually increased to around 50 tons. Equipment on the ground includes a 120-horsepower Diesel and 400-foot Chicago Pneumatic compressor installed last year. Extension of a winze 200 feet is planned and stoping will be done at the face of the south main tunnel. About 1,600 feet of workings open the mine, which is owned by Frederick B. Andrews, 2133 North East Wasco Street, Portland, Oregon, and the estate of W. L. Staley. E. A. Pickler of Mehama is chief engineer and general manager. About twelve men are employed.
