Relating to Interpretation of a Reasonable Request
Presented by Jennifer Howald

The Department received a petition for rulemaking. The petitioner requests that the Board on Public Safety Standards and Training amend OAR 259-060-0015 to establish a standardized, objective definition for a "reasonable request" when a member of the public asks to view a private security provider's DPSST credentials. The petitioner states that "the current lack of a standardized definition creates operational ambiguity in the field. This regulatory gap frequently leads to unnecessary conflicts, arbitrary denials of identification, and inconsistent enforcement by private security entities. Codifying a clear, objective four-point checklist will protect the public's right to accountability while providing security professionals with clear operational boundaries.

When an agency receives a petition for rulemaking, the agency has 90 days to respond to the petition. The agency can either deny the petition in writing or initiate rulemaking proceedings by filing a proposed rule or temporary rule.

DRAFT

The Department receives questions on how to interpret a reasonable request fairly regularly and also receives complaints against private security providers who have not presented their certification, license, or temporary work permit when requested by a member of the public. The Department originally planned to amend the rule in the coming year during a review of the entire set of private security provider rules. However, in recognition of the 90-day timeline required for responding to a petition, the Department recommends moving forward on this issue now.

The Department recommends filing a proposed rule change for the purposes of gathering public comment related to the identified issue and concern. Following the public comment period, the Department will review the proposed rule changes, substantive comments, and the petition to determine if the proposed rule changes will have the desired outcome or need additional revision.

By discussion and consensus, the committee reviewed the Department's draft rule changes and provided feedback.
Action Item 2: By discussion and consensus, the committee approved the fiscal impact statements.
