Shaping Policy for Oregon's Energy Future — Your Voice Matters!

A Collaborative Policy Process

The Oregon Department of Energy continues working through the policy phase of the Oregon Energy Strategy, and invites Oregonians to join us for two public forums to weigh in on the issues that matter most to you. The forum will provide:

- A brief update on the work underway to develop recommendations in the Oregon Energy Strategy.
- An open forum for public input—we want to understand your priorities and concerns as we continue to develop the recommendations.
- For those who attended our February 27 Public Forum\(s\), this session will build on those meetings with new content and questions.

Note that each session will present the same information, so please plan to join the time that works best for you (or join both!).

Your Input is Essential

We believe that all Oregonians should have a voice in shaping our energy future. Whether you care about affordability, clean energy, resilience, equity, or economic impacts, your feedback will help guide our thinking. This is a chance for you to ask questions, share insights, and help recommend policies that reflect the diverse needs of communities across the state.

Ongoing Engagement

In addition to this event, we continue to hold Policy Working Group meetings that dive into specific energy policy topics. These meetings allow for a more detailed discussion and analysis of policy options and their potential impact. All Policy Working Group sessions are open to the public to listen in and are recorded and available on ODOE's website.

Please contact ODOE to request translation services or other accommodations to participate in these forums: energy.strategy@energy.oregon.gov.
