House Sizing for Residential Energy Code

- The concept of size standards in energy efficiency
- Who best to involve in setting home sizing thresholds?
- What are the data needs and the resources?
- BCD seeking data from 3 groups
 - Answer preliminary questions in focus areas
 - Bring data to primary public meetings
 - Bring additional areas of concern
- Timing of group kickoff

Home Size Impact Part 1

Home Construction Trends and Costs Experts:

What home size(s) are to be considered

- What home sizes are being constructed (metro-urban vs small community-rural)
- Major cost impacts beyond construction costs
- Fuel availability; Incentives vs. none
- Look at “Large” homes
 - Distribution of homes above 3,000 square feet (size, location, number of bedrooms)

Home Size Impact Part 2

Housing Advocacy and Finance

Affordability and finance impacts:

- Advocacy and what are needs for affordable housing
 - Regional differences
- Cost of financing and ownership affect on buyers
 - Taxes, mortgage insurance, utilities (regional)
- Other cost considerations
- Balance point for affordability vs. energy use
- Large homes and large families

Home Size Impact Part 3

Preliminary Energy Review

Cost of energy compared to cost of construction:

- Look at 2021 ORSC and “2023” ZERH home
- Compare impact on “Small” vs Average home
 - Regional differences
- Ownership cost impact integration (advocacy group input)
- Low cost ideas for early consideration
 - Preliminary look at threshold of unit construction cost vs. unit of energy savings (how many $ does it take to get $ of savings?)

HB 2062 – Energy Efficiency Standards

- Also known as “Appliance Standards”, these are complementary to building codes
- What the bill does, standards involved
- For bill information: HB2062 2021 Regular Session - Oregon Legislative Information System
