EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 04-04

OFFICE OF RURAL POLICY AND RURAL POLICY ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Pursuant to my authority as Governor of the State of Oregon, I find that:

Oregon is a state of great economic and geographic diversity. While that diversity brings us strength, it also challenges us to meet the needs of all communities, both urban and rural. Although Oregon is challenged by a sluggish economy, poverty and hunger, rural Oregon is even more deeply affected because the natural resource base that has been the foundation of rural Oregon’s economy has changed dramatically over the past two decades.

The diversity within “Rural Oregon” (as defined below) can be best understood by understanding the following geographic distinctions:

- Frontier Rural – a geographic area that is at least 75 miles by road from a community of less than 2,000 individuals. It is characterized by an absence of densely populated areas, small communities, individuals working in their communities, an economy dominated by natural resources and agricultural activities, and few paved streets or roads.
- Isolated Rural – a geographic area that is at least 100 miles by road from a community of 3,000 or more individuals. It is characterized by low population density (fewer than five people per square mile), an economy of natural resources and agricultural activity, large areas of land owned by the state or federal government and predominately unpaved streets.
- Rural – a geographic area that is at least 30 miles by road from an urban community (50,000 or more). It is characterized by some commercial business, two or fewer densely populated areas in a county, an economy changing from a natural resource base to more commercial interests and reasonable, but not immediate, access to health care.
- Urban Rural – a geographic area that is at least 10 miles by road from an urban community. It is characterized by many individuals commuting to an urban area to work or shop, an economy with few natural resource and agricultural activities, easy and immediate access to health care services and numerous paved streets and roads.

Rural Oregon communities are in need: unemployment in those communities is often many percentage points higher than the state average; Rural Oregon communities have significant threshold issues to overcome to compete with urban communities for economic and community development resources; the lack of an industrial base in most rural communities, makes funding for education, health care, economic development and other social services more difficult to attain; and finally, Rural Oregon communities often lack administrative mechanisms and infrastructure to share information and to collectively construct solutions to its problems.
