17 LUBA No. 2014-105

18 ORDER ON MOTION FOR
19 ATTORNEY FEES AND COSTS

20 ATTORNEY FEES

21 Petitioners move for an award of attorney fees from the city and 22 intervenor-respondent (intervenor) pursuant to ORS 197.830(15)(b), which 23 provides:

24 “The board shall also award reasonable attorney fees and expenses
25 to the prevailing party against any other party who the board finds 26 presented a position without probable cause to believe the position
27 was well-founded in law or on factually supported information.”

28 In determining whether to award attorney fees against a nonprevailing party, 29 we must determine that “every argument in the entire presentation [that a 30 nonprevailing party] makes to LUBA is lacking in probable cause.” Fechtig v.
31 City of Albany, 150 Or App 10, 24, 946 P2d 280 (1997). Under ORS
32 197.830(15)(b), a position is presented “without probable cause” where “no

1 reasonable lawyer would conclude that any of the legal points asserted on 2 appeal possessed legal merit.” Contreras v. City of Philomath, 32 Or LUBA
3 465, 469 (1996). In applying the probable cause analysis LUBA “will consider 4 whether any of the issues raised [by a party] were open to doubt, or subject to 5 rational, reasonable, or honest discussion.” Id. The party seeking an award of 6 attorney fees under the probable cause standard must clear a relatively high 7 hurdle and that hurdle is not met by simply showing that LUBA rejected all of 8 a party’s arguments on the merits. Brown v. City of Ontario, 33 Or LUBA 803, 9 804 (1997).

10 Petitioners appealed a city council decision approving a home
11 occupation permit for a commercial truck business. This was the second time
12 this matter was before LUBA. See Stevens v. City of Island City, 68 Or LUBA 13 112, aff’d 260 Or App 768, 324 P3d 477 (2014) (remanding the city’s initial 14 approval of intervenor’s application for a home occupation permit on three 15 grounds). On remand, the city considered multiple methods that could be used
16 to determine if the proposed use could occur within 600 square feet.¹ The city 17 once again approved the permit, concluding that the home occupation would 18 not require more than 600 square feet of floor space. Petitioners appealed 19 again, arguing one assignment of error with two sub-parts: (1) the city erred in 20 its interpretation of its code, and (2) the city’s conclusion is not supported by 21 substantial evidence. We sustained petitioners’ assignment of error and 22 remanded the decision in order for the city to allow the parties to submit 23 evidence regarding the amount of floor area utilized by the home occupation

¹ Island City Development Code (ICDC) 10.07(A) provides that if a home occupation occurs within an accessory structure, the home occupation “shall not utilize over 600 square feet of floor area.”

1 outside of the footprint of the equipment associated with the use.

2 A. Fees Against Intervenor-Respondent

3 Petitioners argue that they are entitled to attorney fees and costs because 4 they prevailed on their single assignment of error, and in opposing that single 5 assignment of error intervenor necessarily presented a position “without 6 probable cause to believe the position was well-founded in law or factually 7 supported information.” ORS 197.830(15)(b).

8 Intervenor responds that petitioners misinterpret the standard of review 9 for attorney fees, noting that the probable cause standard is not met unless the 10 prevailing party demonstrates that every argument made by the nonprevailing
11 party lacked probable cause. Intervenor argues that petitioners fail to establish 12 that every argument in intervenor’s entire presentation lacked probable cause.
13 We agree with intervenor that petitioners appear to misunderstand the probable 14 cause test. Petitioners do not identify any argument or position advanced by 15 intervenor that would fail the probable cause test, much less demonstrate that 16 intervenor’s entire presentation, all arguments or positions taken by intervenor, 17 lacked probable cause.

18 Intervenor notes several arguments that it made in response to 19 petitioners’ assignment of error that not only met the probable cause standard, 20 but that LUBA agreed with. For example, in response to petitioners’ first sub-21 assignment of error, intervenor argued that petitioners misread ICDC 2.02(E) to 22 compel the city council to adopt the planning staff’s interpretation. We agreed
23 with intervenor on that point. Based on that example alone, intervenor 24 presented at least one argument that not only met the low probable cause 25 threshold (i.e. it was a position that a reasonable attorney would advance), but 26 it was also the prevailing argument on that point.

1 While petitioners prevailed in obtaining remand based on some of the 2 arguments presented in the assignment of error, petitioners have not come close
3 to demonstrating that intervenor’s entire presentation failed the probable cause 4 test.

5 Petitioners’ motion for fees against intervenor is denied.

6 B. Fees Against the City

7 The city responds to petitioners’ motion by arguing that no attorney fees 8 are recoverable from the city because the city did not present a “position” on 9 appeal.

10 ORS 197.830(15)(b) entitles a prevailing party to recover attorney fees
11 when the nonprevailing party has “presented a position without probable cause 12 to believe the position was well-founded in law or on factually supported 13 information.” An initial inquiry under ORS 197.830(15)(b) is whether the city, 14 as a nonprevailing party, presented a position to LUBA. Where a local 15 government “files the local record [but] does not file or join in a brief or other 16 document at LUBA defending its decision,” the local government does not 17 present a position in the LUBA appeal and no award of attorney fees against 18 the local government is possible under ORS 197.830(15)(b). Hearne v. Baker
19 County, 35 Or LUBA 768, 770 (1998), aff’d 158 Or App 246, 972 P2d 16 1233
20 (1999); Hastings Bulb Growers, Inc. v. Curry County, 25 Or LUBA 558, 564,
21 aff’d 123 Or App 642, 859 P2d 1208 (1993). Because of the city’s limited
22 participation, it did not present a “position” for purposes of ORS 23 197.830(15)(b) and no award of attorney fees is possible.

24 Petitioners’ motion for fees against the city is denied.

1 COSTS

2 Petitioners filed a cost bill, requesting award of the cost of the filing fee, 3 in the amount of $200. Under OAR 661-010-0075(1)(b)(A), petitioners are 4 entitled to an award of the cost of the filing fee. Petitioners mistakenly request
5 an award of its $200 deposit for costs. The deposit for costs is not a cost that is 6 recoverable through a motion for costs. Petitioners are entitled to a return of the 7 deposit for costs, but it is returned by LUBA. OAR 661-010-0075(1)(d).

8 Accordingly, petitioners are awarded the cost of the filing fee, in the 9 amount of $200, to be paid by the city and intervenor. LUBA will return the 10 $200 deposit to petitioners.
