

The group chat will be there after school.

The conversation in front of you is happening right now.

Checking the group chat during class...

The actual conversation happening in front of you

Researchers found that receiving a phone notification alone, even without interacting with the phone itself, significantly disrupted performance on an attention-demanding task.