

Lori Rae Smith, D.Ed., is the Director of Student Achievement for Bethel School District in Eugene, Oregon. A former special education teacher, her expertise includes early reading, adolescent literacy and system performance. A member of the Literacy Leadership State Team, she works with ODE and other districts to implement sustainable models to improve students' reading proficiency. Her dissertation focused on adolescent literacy, and she has worked with the University of Oregon on reading and research projects conducted in the Bethel School District.

Lori is co-author, with Ginger Kowalko and Mary M. Gleason, of the ACCESS* Toolkit (*Academic Content Competence: Every Student Succeeding).