I'm writing to provide comment on the recent proposed rulemaking related to vehicle identification number inspections. I believe the assessment connected to the filing incorrectly indicates that there will be no racial equity impact. The proposed Level 2 verifications are to be completed by law enforcement and may or may not have a cost associated with it. Communities of color, in particular Black and Brown communities, are disproportionately impacted by violent policing. This, paired with the fact that Black and Brown communities historically and traditionally make less than 70 cents to the dollar, could financially impact racial equity. It seems there is an attempt to make this more accessible by providing additional opportunities to receive verification. However, if those opportunities are not with trusted sources for communities that have been historically marginalized, they are not opportunities at all. Thank you for hearing my concern! Please let me know if you need any additional information! Shelby
