AAC is within the SLP scope of practice as long as they are properly trained.

Subject: AAC question

You don't often get email from megan.hyers@providence.org. Learn why this is important

Hello,

I am just wanting to double check that I am giving correct advice to our SLP team.

Working with Augmentative Alternative Communication is within our scope of practice?

If we get training on working with AAC, we are ok to treat patients with AAC needs, correct? Anything in particular around this topic that I should be aware of?

Thanks for your guidance,

Megan
