Health Care Market Oversight

Edgepark and AdaptHealth

The Health Care Market Oversight (HCMO) program reviews health care business deals to make sure they support Oregon's goals of health equity, lower costs, increased access, and better care. On November 3. 2026, the Oregon Health Authority (OHA) accepted a complete notice of material change describing plans for RGH Enterprises, LLC ("Edgepark") to acquire the assets of several subsidiary entities of AdaptHealth Corp. ("AdaptHealth") that comprise AdaptHealth's diabetes-related supply business.

Who's involved?

Edgepark is a national direct-to-consumer medical supply distributor and dispensing business owned by RGH Enterprises LLC, an indirect subsidiary of Cardinal Health, Inc. Its product lines include continuous glucose monitors (CGMs), traditional blood glucose testing supplies, and other diabetes-related home medical equipment. Edgepark's physical footprint in Oregon is largely limited to a distribution warehouse for medical supplies.

AdaptHealth is a direct-to-consumer distributor of home medical equipment serving patients across the United States, including Oregon. Its products include supplies and equipment for diabetes management, sleep therapy, respiratory support, and other products for use at home. AdaptHealth operates two home medical equipment supply stores in Salem and Medford, as well as warehouses in Eugene, Portland, and Hillsboro.

About the deal

Edgepark will acquire the assets of several subsidiaries of AdaptHealth that comprise AdaptHealth's diabetes-related supply business. The entities state the deal will improve Edgepark's ability to serve diabetes patients, distribution efficiency, and operations through cloud-based software. AdaptHealth will exit the diabetes business to focus on its other products, with no changes to either company's management structure.
