Need to Get Rid of Used Diabetic Supplies?

If you use insulin, you may use needles to inject your medication. This might leave you with a lot of used disposable needles and syringes.

When you're at home, you can use a sharps disposal container. These are special containers that prevent accidental punctures. The containers also ensure safe disposal. But what do you do when your sharps container is full?

There are several places you can take your sharps containers. These include drop boxes, supervised collection sites, and household hazardous waste collection sites. You can even look into mail-back programs.

Check out this interactive tool to find the nearest place to your home. You can also call Safe Needle Disposal at 800-643-1643.

Please note that sharps containers and proper disposal of sharps also applies to lancets, auto-injectors, needle connectors, and infusion sets. Click here to learn more about safe needle disposal.
