COMMUNITIES FIGHTING FRAUD

Regional Public Affairs Office, Community Outreach, Social Security Administration

Older people are at a greater risk of fraud and other forms of financial exploitation. The United States Postal Service has seen an increase in mail fraud and is promoting community strength and fraud awareness as a way to prevent abuse. Social Security agrees. You can help your more vulnerable loved ones fight fraud.

You or a loved one might receive an advertisement in the mail, but it could be from a private company or even a scammer. United States law prohibits people or non-government businesses from using words or emblems that mislead others. Their advertising can't lead people to believe that they represent, are somehow affiliated with, or endorsed or approved by Social Security.

Scammers commonly target people who are looking for Social Security program and benefit information. If you receive misleading information about Social Security, send the complete advertisement, including the envelope it came in, to:

Office of the Inspector General Fraud Hotline
Social Security Administration
P.O. Box 17768
Baltimore, MD 21235

Community can simply mean your family unit. The more you know about what your loved ones are exposed to, the better you can protect them.

We also receive reports where someone pretending to be a Social Security employee has contacted members of the public. The intent of this type of call may be to steal your identity and/or money from your bank accounts. They may state that your Social Security number will be suspended or they may demand immediate payment. The caller generally asks you for personal information such as your Social Security number, date of birth, your mother's maiden name, or your bank or financial account information. You should not provide any of this information to these individuals.

It's possible that a Social Security employee may contact you to follow-up on a previous application for Social Security benefits or to follow-up on other business you initiated with Social Security. Remember, Social Security employees will never threaten you or demand any kind of payment in exchange for services.

It's important that you report any and all fraud. This can only strengthen our communities and your family. You can report Social Security fraud at oig.ssa.gov/report.

United States Preventive Task Force Issues Recommendation on PrEP - one more step in the prevention of new HIV infections!

Recommendation Summary
Population	Recommendation	Grade (What's This?)
Persons at high risk of HIV acquisition	The USPSTF recommends that clinicians offer preexposure prophylaxis (PrEP) with effective antiretroviral therapy to persons who are at high risk of HIV acquisition.	A

"We have not previously had a guideline on PrEP, though HIV continues to be a major public health problem in the United States, with nearly 40,000 new cases diagnosed annually," Dr. Douglas K. Owens, an author of the new guidelines published in JAMA and a professor of medicine at Stanford University, told ABC News. "PrEP is highly effective if taken as indicated."

Day Center open on Wednesday 9-12 p.m.

Over the past year, we at the Ecumenical Ministries of Oregon HIV Day Center have received feedback from clients that it would be really helpful if we restored Wednesday service. Understanding that this was previously the case, and wanting to be responsive to our community, we will begin PARTIAL Wednesday service beginning in July. Instead of our normal service hours of 9am – 3pm, we will be open from 9am – 12noon on Wednesdays. Instead of our regular hot lunch service at 1pm, we will be offering sack lunches "to go" between 11:30 and noon. All of our standard services will be available, laundry, clothing closet, showers, and referrals.

One thing to note, is that our buss pass attendance requirements will shift slightly due to the increased service days. Previously, clients would need to have 9 attendance days between the 1st and 25th of each month, and this requirement will increase to 11 days during the same time period.

We are very excited about being able to bring back Wednesday service, and are hopeful that this will provide some more consistency and stability in our clients' day to day lived experience and weekly routine.

Feel free to forward any questions our way! ceves@emoregon.org
