What does direct economic impact mean?

The phrase “direct economic impact” refers to the impact on business revenue in Main Streets because of the additional spending and business revenue that occurs in Main Street downtowns as a result of the efforts of Main Streets. This is the actual change in the economy attributable to the Main Street network.
Total Economic Impact

The economic impacts of Main Streets extend beyond the direct revenue and sales in the economy because of Main Streets. When businesses make these sales, additional money is spent in the economy through business supply chain, or business-to-business purchases. This type of impact is commonly referred to as indirect impacts. Collectively, between 2011 and 2021, the direct impact of Main Streets led to an additional $61.6 million of indirect impacts or supply chain expenditure.

Furthermore, when an employee whose job is supported by the direct economic impact spends their salary and wages, this household spending creates what’s called induced impacts, generating even more business activity and more jobs. During this same time period, Main Streets generated $66.2 million of induced impacts because of the programmatic efforts and results of Main Streets’ work. This total combined economic impact equates to $265.7 million total or $24.2 million of economic impact annually. These economic impacts generate more jobs and employment opportunities throughout the state. The 1,613 jobs supported by the direct economic impact and 2,392 jobs supported overall reflect the approximate employment spurred by the $140.9 million and $265.7 million respectively. While Main Streets include employees as part of their organizations, the employment impacts are much greater.

Main Street Economic Impact By Region

Oregon’s Main Streets are spread across the state’s seven distinct regions, reflecting the wide range of cultures, customers, and tourism patterns throughout the Beaver State.

With local Main Street programs in each of Oregon’s seven regions, Oregon Main Street and its program network impact every corner of the state. While Oregon features a vast range of natural landscapes, cultures, histories, and development patterns, the Main Street model has proved to be highly adaptable in meeting the specific needs of each community and region. From coastal communities to urban Portland and the wide-open eastern plains, Oregon’s Main Streets have helped their downtowns leverage their unique competitive advantages, attract new customers, and build community connections.

The economic impact of the Oregon Main Street network is distributed across Oregon’s seven regions. These regions are recognized by Oregon Heritage and embedded in the Oregon Historic Preservation Plan and Travel Oregon, Oregon’s Tourism Commission, programmatic efforts. The economic impacts Main Streets generate across the regions reflect the balance of Performing Main Streets, Transforming Downtowns, and Exploring Downtowns within each area. Six of the seven regions include one, and in some cases, two, Performing Main Streets which generate significant economic impacts due to their more substantial operations and capacity compared to Transforming Downtowns and Exploring Downtowns. Oregon’s Coast, Portland, Willamette, and Eastern Regions include Transforming Downtowns. All of Oregon’s seven regions have Exploring Downtowns, the largest of the three tiers by the volume of the program. The majority of Main Streets’ economic impact between 2011 and 2021 across the regions of the state range from $25 million to $47 million per region except for the Willamette Valley generating $79 million due to the highest cluster of Main Streets in that region. Similarly, despite having only a few Main Streets, all of which are Exploring Downtowns, Main Streets’ efforts in Oregon’s Central Region supported $7 million of economic activity.

Main Street Success:

Oregon Main Street and RDI Partnership for Rural Communities

Oregon Main Street not only provides support to help commercial districts in urban and suburban areas but also targets direct support to Oregon’s rural communities. In doing so, Oregon Main Street partnered with Rural Development Initiatives (RDI) to bring economic vitality workshops and training to regional Main Street hubs for rural communities. This partnership helped community leaders create economic development strategies and plans rooted in and with the capacity of their communities, embarking on tools for Main Streets to build innovative and collective approaches for their regional economies.

“Working through the Main Street organizational lens gives us a chance to attend to basic needs of the humans at the table, strengthen and support local leadership skills, and translate that group capacity into locally-led place-based economic vitality strategies. We will continue to explore that role as a partner to a greater degree going forward.” - RDI Leadership

As a result of this partnership and efforts, RDI was awarded the USDA Rural Community Development Initiative Grant to expand these efforts to additional rural communities. The on-the-ground support broadened the communities’ social capital and facilitated an expansion of local networks, providing authentic support to rural communities through this strategic partnership.
Oregon’s Main Streets preserve historic downtown buildings, celebrating and maintaining each community’s character, history, and charm.

Main Street America™ was established as a program of the National Trust for Historic Preservation to address the issues pertaining to older building stock in historic downtowns, rooted in the connection between historic preservation, the value of place, and economic development. The Oregon Main Street network remains dedicated champions for preserving the aesthetics and history of their downtown communities. The investments, advocated and driven by the network, make Oregon’s downtowns more attractive, retain the connections to their past, and spark the desirability of these downtown communities. As buildings continue to age, these efforts and resources will remain vital and even more necessary in the years to come.

Between 2011 and 2021, Main Streets generated $26.2 million in direct historic preservation efforts for their downtown commercial districts. This direct economic impact includes the rehabilitation, renovation, and reconstruction of historic properties and buildings within the historic districts of Oregon’s Main Streets. As a result of this direct impact, an additional $22 million of economic activity was spurred, for a combined total economic impact of $48.3 million.

Many jobs are created through these historic preservation efforts from architectural and engineering services to permitting and construction. Since 2011, the direct impact of historic preservation efforts led to the creation of 121 jobs. These jobs resulted in over $8.3 million of salary and wages for workers to preserve the historic cores of the commercial districts.

How Main Streets Preserve and Adaptively Reuse Downtown Buildings

The Oregon Main Street network actively works to bring new life into aging and historic buildings in downtown districts. With Main Streets imbedded in the historic centers of their communities, these efforts take on a variety of different forms. From inexpensive advocacy efforts to leveraging intensive and catalytic resources such as the Main Street Revitalization Grant, 92% of Oregon’s Main Streets reported that they actively help support historic preservation in their communities.

Re-Imagine New Life in Aging and Underutilized Buildings

Main Streets are visionary in their perceptions of the state’s downtowns, sparking dreams of new uses in aging and dilapidated buildings and transitioning these historic districts into innovative and fresh futures.

Provide Early Design Support and Ideas

Main Street staff, board members, and volunteers often include design professionals that can provide initial ideas and complementary services for tenants and building owners to help envision possibilities.
About Oregon’s Main Street Revitalization Grant

In 2017, Oregon Heritage and the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department launched the Main Street Revitalization Grant, a distinctive financial opportunity to support downtown enhancement through historic preservation. The grant leverages Main Streets as connectors and partners between the state, property owners, and developers, and offers necessary financial resources to acquire, restore, and rehabilitate aging buildings in the Main Street districts as well as construct compatible new construction for in-fill development.

The Main Street Revitalization Grant has had tremendous results in communities across the state through a total of 57 historic preservation projects.

Between the grant awards in 2017 and 2019, Main Streets channeled $15.3 million of funding for historic preservation when accounting for the $7.6 million awarded through the state and $7.7 million in matching funds. This investment led to $36.1 million of total economic activity (direct, indirect, and induced impacts) as a result of the Main Street Revitalization Grant.

Astoria’s Merwyn: Preserving History and Meeting the Community’s Needs with Oregon’s Main Street Revitalization Grant

While the Merwyn, a once vibrant boutique hotel, symbolized disinvestment and blight for many as the nearly century old building sat vacant and in disarray, the Astoria Downtown Historic District Association (ADHDA) saw opportunity. The Main Street’s passion for preservation and meeting the needs of the community merged as ADHDA envisioned a new future for the building. Central in Astoria’s Downtown Historic District, the rehabilitation of the Merwyn embodied an authentic opportunity for preservation. ADHDA engaged with Innovative Housing, Inc. to partner in the rehabilitation and renovation of this “untouchable project,” renounced by the traditional development community. ADHDA and Innovative Housing, Inc. seized the opportunity to re-envision the dilapidated building into affordable housing.

The new development program of affordable housing at the Merwyn met both the community’s needs and pragmatic necessity for achieving a feasible redevelopment. Rising housing costs and increased homelessness in the community sparked the idea for the Main Street to partner with Innovative Housing, Inc., a Portland-based developer that specializes in creative strategies to develop affordable housing. After inviting Innovative Housing, Inc. into the community to better learn about the needs and opportunities to alleviate housing market pressures, the Main Street and developer turned to the perplexing task of financing this challenging rehabilitation.

The award of $100,000 through Oregon’s Main Street Revitalization Grant catalyzed nine other state and federal funding incentives and partners to make this $7 million project a reality. The state’s recognition of the revitalization opportunity at hand and the commitment of these investment dollars paved the way for enhanced partnerships and gained momentum for additional financial incentives and opportunities. Following the Oregon Main Street Revitalization Grant, the development leveraged historic tax credits, Low Income Housing Tax Credit, Oregon Local Innovation and Fast Track (LIFT) Funds, Oregon Brownfield Grant, Oregon Community Foundation Grant, Meyer Memorial Trust Grant, and the Meyer Memorial Trust Grant to fund the development.

“Astoria is passionate about preservation and this restoration is a case study in careful consideration of architectural heritage and modern needs….Now the dozens of tenants who call The Merwyn home can walk to work, get a bite from the food carts on their way home, and access wider transportation just two blocks away.”

- Oregon Main Street Excellence on Main Award (2021)

After opening its doors in 2021, The Merwyn now features 40 new housing units in the downtown, 36 of which are dedicated affordable housing units. These affordable housing units, primarily targeted towards residents with incomes 30% of the area’s median income, allow residents with easy access to downtown jobs and a vibrant community. The Merwyn’s meticulously renovated façade, light-filled units, and historically replicated details now symbolize the community’s evolving story. Continuing forward with this inspiring project complete, Astoria Downtown Historic District Association remains steadfast in ensuring 100% of the Main Street’s historic buildings are restored.

Oregon’s Main Streets support existing local businesses and attract new businesses to their downtowns. Main Streets play an important role in the economic development and resiliency of their communities.

Much of a Main Street’s work is oriented around supporting local businesses and helping to encourage and attract new businesses to local in the downtown districts. This work takes a variety of forms, from working with a business owner to negotiate a lease they can no longer afford to helping connect a broker or property owner with the right tenant. Many of these business support services became more important than ever during the COVID-19 pandemic which brought economic disruptions to the business community. The Oregon Main Street network adapted nimbly to aid their business communities. Main Streets secured additional financial resources for their downtowns, helped businesses apply for grants and loans, facilitated the expansion of outdoor dining options and delivery services for restaurants, and provided information on safety and regulatory changes.

The types of business technical assistance Main Streets provide reflects the dynamic needs of their communities and helps keep struggling businesses operating while creating the environment businesses crave. Main Streets’ role in retaining and attracting businesses mean more local amenities and more local jobs. Importantly, these economic development efforts generate additional tax revenue to their cities, counties, and the state of Oregon.

Oregon Main Streets’ economic development efforts generated $28.0 million of direct economic revenue between 2011 and 2021. This direct economic impact reflects the attributable growth of businesses in Main Streets. As a result of this direct impact, an additional $27.1 million of economic activity occurred through additional business spending to accommodate this growth and the attributable employees spending their salary and wages. This equates to a total of $55.1 million of combined economic impact specific to the work of Oregon’s Main Streets in attracting business activity in their communities.
A fundamental part of Main Street efforts lies within ensuring the economic vitality for the future of the commercial districts and downtowns. Main Streets actively work to achieve strong local economies throughout the state by creating places where people want to locate and open businesses. The on-the-ground support of Main Streets helps prospective businesses, including women and minority-owned businesses, navigate the processes to successfully open and launch their businesses, leading to significant positive changes in their local economies.

Oregon’s Main Streets, particularly the Preforming Main Streets and Transforming Downtowns, work to bring new businesses to their Main Street districts.

Main Street business attraction and retention efforts include strong relationships regarding available properties, helping navigate regulatory processes, demonstrating investment in the community, and much more.

Oregon’s Main Streets experienced 908 net new businesses that opened in the districts between 2011 and 2021.

While Exploring Downtowns contribute to the types of environments that attract businesses, the Main Street programmatic efforts directly towards business attraction is marginal to quantify.

Beyond attracting new businesses to their downtowns, Main Streets bolster local economies by helping to retain existing businesses, providing fundamental support to small and local businesses across the state.

The tourism, placemaking, partnership, and downtown investment spurred by Main Streets symbiotically support the economic climate that helps businesses prosper.

While 30% of Oregon’s Main Streets do not have any formalized business retention efforts embedded in their programs, their other efforts indirectly help retain these businesses. Helping Prospective Businesses Open Their Doors in Downtown Albany

The Albany Downtown Association dedicates itself to promoting the heart and vitality of not only the uniqueness of the historic district’s architecture and buildings but also the businesses that call Downtown Albany home.

Downtown Albany balances the area’s historic character and charm with an emergent assortment of popular businesses. The Main Street actively works to recruit new businesses to the downtown area while also providing progressive business assistance to help support their current businesses.

Downtown Albany makes introductions and connections as local economic development leaders with its “Guide to Starting or Relocating Your Business Downtown,” a guidebook produced by the Main Street to welcome prospective businesses to the community. This well-distributed and well-used Guide highlights the competitive advantages of locating in Downtown Albany, answers frequently asked questions about business permits and licenses needed for the city, outlines economic incentives and helpful programs, tips for finding the best commercial space in the downtown, and how to get involved with the Main Street program as a business owner. The Guide articulates helpful information, untangles regulatory processes, and importantly starts a relationship with each business owner as they enter the community. As these relationships develop over time, Downtown Albany helps strengthen the prosperity of the business community with continued resources, assistance, training, and support.

The Main Street works to reduce downtown commercial vacancy by partnering with the real estate community to market available retail and commercial spaces. Downtown Albany’s website hosts up-to-date information about available commercial properties. This partnership allows prospective businesses and entrepreneurs to reach out and learn more about the types of spaces and potential commercial leases in a noncommittal and, importantly, nonintimidating manner, embodying the ethos of Main Street.
Oregon’s Main Streets’ abilities to serve as economic development leaders in their communities proved truer than ever during the COVID-19 pandemic. The Main Street model helped communities become more economically resilient than communities without these dedicated Main Street resources.

Oregon’s Main Streets were already working hard to support local businesses before the pandemic but, as this public health emergency brought with it a new set of challenges and considerations, Main Streets were quick to meet the changing needs of residents and turbulent local economies. Main Streets provided tangible benefits to their communities during the pandemic. They adapted quickly to distribute resources and information during a time when businesses nearly everywhere were facing an array of unfamiliar obstacles. Across the country, Main Street America™ proved to be a successful approach for economic resiliency.

COVID-19 Pandemic’s Impacts on Oregon

According to statewide businesses survey in April 2020, 72% of businesses experienced a decrease in sales and 44% had to decrease worker hours. The tourism, restaurant, recreation and retail industries were hit particularly hard by the pandemic, facing higher rates of temporary business closures, layoffs, and the inability to pay business expenses, rent and workers. Oregon’s rural counties saw more businesses close than other counties.

Main Streets Generate Economic Resiliency

National trends on consumer spending highlight the value Main Streets bring in the economic resilience of many communities. Nationally, the Main Street model and its ability to delivery on-the-ground needed resources during turbulent times proved successful.

In comparative studies, during March 2020, Main Streets experienced revenue drops equivalent to statewide averages (3%), but Main Streets recovered faster. By the fall of 2021, Main Streets, on average, increased revenue by 15% compared to pre-pandemic levels, while consumer spending in the comparable states increased by 12%. Residents of Main Street communities stepped up to support local businesses during the pandemic and many have continued this support. In these studies, Main Streets experienced 50% increase in local customer spending between 2019 to 2021.

Continued Challenges into the Future

While Main Streets showcased their important value during the pandemic and the crucial need for Main Streets, the Oregon Main Street network remains beholden to limited resources, personnel capacity, and funding to continue this impactful work into the future.

While the COVID-19 pandemic brought devastating economic impacts on downtowns, Oregon’s Main Streets found unique ways to garner support for their local businesses. Stories like the ones below demonstrate Main Streets’ boundless creativity to meet the needs of their communities.

Dine Out(side) in McMinnville
In summer 2020, McMinnville Downtown Association began closing part of the town’s 3rd Street to vehicles to safely accommodate outdoor dining. Dine Out(side) has become a recurring summer event, and the downtown’s restaurants and shops have thrived as a result of the local community’s steadfast support.

RAISE UP Downtown Beaverton
Emerging from a year of pandemic lockdowns in 2021, Beaverton Downtown Association launched RAISE UP, a community giving program dedicated to supporting programs and events. RAISE UP allows donors to make reoccurring donations that go towards engaging events that help connect residents and make Downtown Beaverton more vibrant.
Oregon’s Main Streets celebrate their local culture and showcase the best of Oregon’s downtowns by driving tourism and bringing more people to experience the downtown communities.

Main Streets in Oregon bring more visitors to their downtowns through targeted efforts to bolster tourism and customer attraction. Main Streets oversee marketing efforts to showcase what their downtowns have to offer and develop promotional strategies to attract visitors at key times and to particular types of businesses. Main Streets’ branding initiatives directly improve people’s perceptions of their downtowns. Main Streets host festivals and events throughout the year that connect the community, provide family fun, and introduce new customers to local businesses. Each of these Main Street driven activities normalizes downtown as a place to gather, recreate, and shop, expanding the Main Street customer base.

Oregon’s Main Streets plan and host events throughout the year that bring customers and visitors to the downtown commercial districts. Between 2011 and 2021, Main Streets allocated $1.7 million towards events and festivals that attract an inclusive mix of people to shop, dine, and enjoy their downtowns.

These Main Street-hosted festivals and events attracted an estimated 3.7 million people to the Main Streets between 2011 and 2021 during these events. These attendees include both community members and tourists.

On average, 44% of Main Streets’ festival and event attendees come from outside of their cities and towns, reflecting the attributable share of Main Streets’ impact. This equates to a visitor draw of 1.5 million people to downtowns because of the events and festivals organized by Oregon’s Main Streets.

Main Street Events During the COVID-19 Pandemic

Social distancing and stay-at-home orders dramatically affected Main Street events during 2020 with the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Oregon’s Main Streets planned and hosted 56% fewer events in 2020, alleviating organizational capacity to help their business communities during the economically turbulent times. And, while Main Streets facilitated 18% fewer events in 2021 than pre-pandemic times, Main Streets transformed their downtowns and public spaces for impromptu gatherings, outdoor dining, and social distance opportunities.
When these 1.5 million people from outside of the community came to a Main Street for a festival or event, these attendees brought enhanced spending to the local economy by traveling, shopping, and dining during their trips. This spending contributed to the economic impact of Main Streets’ tourism and customer attraction efforts.

Between attributable visitor spending and Main Streets’ programmatic budgets towards hosting the events and marketing their downtowns, Oregon’s Main Streets generated $70 million of direct economic impact between 2011 and 2021. This impact based on tourism and customer attraction efforts led to $64.5 million of indirect and induced impacts for a total economic impact of $134.6 million.

Beyond the dollars, Main Street festivals and events provide crucial gathering and socializing that creates connection among community members, strengthening social ties, providing family-friendly fun and entertainment, all while celebrating the unique culture of Oregon’s Main Streets.

Oregon’s Main Streets create quality places that are inviting and attractive through public realm improvements and placemaking efforts.

Oregon’s Main Streets focus on making their downtowns feel safe, interesting, attractive, and inviting for all. The combination of initiatives and efforts aimed at achieving these results is commonly referred to as placemaking. Main Streets support the design and implementation of physical public realm improvements bringing pedestrian and multimodal infrastructure to the commercial districts. Main Streets also create and maintain beautification efforts from flourishing planters and landscaping to public art and murals. Maintaining a desirable atmosphere demonstrates investment, brand, and commitment to the community which attracts more residents, visitors, and workers to the downtowns.

Over the years, between 2011 and 2021, Oregon Main Streets directly invested $2.5 million into the streetscaping and public realm improvements of their downtown communities which lead to a combined total economic impact of $4.7 million when accounting for supply chain and attributable employee spending.

Performing Main Streets devote 20% of their time, on average, towards placemaking improvements and beautification efforts. These economic impacts tell only part of the story. Main Streets leverage their strong volunteer networks to bring placemaking efforts into fruition and provide care beyond municipal services for the public realm. Importantly, many of the placemaking initiatives in Main Streets are extensive projects where Main Streets help serve as the conduit for the community and advocates for the betterment of the physical environments of their districts. Main Streets continuously work collectively with their municipalities, chambers of commerce, and other organizations to create the quality of places that elicit continued investment.

These physical improvements ensure Main Streets showcase the community’s care and investment in the commercial districts. Main Streets’ public realm and streetscape is the first impression to the community, a consideration importantly recognized by the Oregon Main Street network.

- Enhanced Lighting Along Streets to Increase Comfort and Safety
  From partnering with municipalities’ public works department to improve streetlighting to installing seasonal celebration lights, brightly lit commercial districts encourage visitors to stay, shop, and dine into the night.
Oregon’s Main Streets build community networks to advocate for the needs of their downtowns, support enhancement efforts, and increase capacity to enact change.

Much of the work of the Oregon Main Street network relates to outreach, advocacy, partnership building, and operation of the nonprofit organizations. Main Street leadership develop localized networks to understand the interests of their communities, advocate for their community and downtowns’ needs, and cultivate partnership that enhance their ability to make a difference. Even program expenses go directly into the local economy, including the employment of local staff.

Between 2011 and 2021, through organization operations, Main Streets generated of economic activity as a result of the programmatic activities. This direct impact reflects the collective overall Main Street operation budgets aside from operational costs dedicated towards historic preservation, tourism, economic development, and placemaking. As a result of this direct impact, an additional $8.7 million of economic activity occurred because of indirect and induced impacts, for a total economic output of $22.9 million between 2011 and 2021. Main Streets operate as nonprofit organizations reliant heavily on fundraising abilities and partnership support, an ongoing challenge for the local programs year after year.

Main Streets’ on-the-ground and grassroots role lend towards generating high levels of return despite often strapped resources. One of the strongest values of a Main Street offers its community is the ability to serve as a conduit for partnerships and resources at city, regional, and state levels as well as working laterally within the commercial district to connect business owners, distribute resources and technical assistance, and channel connections with the broader community.

The partnership and relationship building focus of the Main Street model is fundamental in strengthening the economic vitality and social infrastructure of Oregon’s communities.
Oregon Main Streets’ leverage partnerships with their municipalities and other area nonprofits to deploy their programming and serve as a connector for downtown enhancements.

These strong networks of Main Streets and their partners helped create the economic, fiscal, and social impacts shared throughout this report.

Half of Oregon’s Main Streets extend beyond working with businesses but work directly with their residential communities.

These residential partnerships strengthen the ties between the community and the commercial districts, a connection embedded in the spirit of Main Street.

Similarly, Main Streets also partner with local educational and religious institutions.

48% of Oregon’s Main Streets report these partnerships which foster stronger ties to the community and deepen communities’ connections to Main Street.

The Klamath Falls Downtown Association has developed a strong, long-standing partnership with its local municipality, the City of Klamath Falls. The Main Street program delivers numerous services in collaboration with the city, including programming public parks, promoting and marketing downtown, and managing local beautification efforts, such as installing banners and flowers. The Main Street program has also partnered with the city to administer over $160,000 of façade improvement grants each year, helping sustain, preserve and freshen the downtown environment.

This strong partnership not only provides the Main Street with additional revenue for enhancing services and programs but provides the city with a trusted service provider that has intimate knowledge of downtown's needs and opportunities. This streamlined approach eliminates potential inefficiencies and redundancies between city-provided services and Main Street-provided services.

The strong relationship between the city and Main Street program was critically important for downtown businesses following the economic disruption of the COVID-19 pandemic. The Main Street worked closely with the City to deliver $125,000 of direct financial assistance to local businesses to support operations in 2020. Over the last two years, the Main Street has continued to collaborate closely with city leadership on policy and program development to bolster downtown economic resilience. These efforts have led to overwhelming stakeholder support, with 249 out of 250 property owners in the program area supporting a continuation of these efforts.
Main Streets’ partnerships blend into the programmatic efforts of Main Streets, including the wide variety of festivals and events that Oregon’s Main Streets plan, host, and oversee, inclusively bringing the community and visitors into the public realm throughout the year.

The active sidewalks, streets, plazas, and parks during Main Street festivals add authentic vibrancy to the downtown communities. These signature and routinely offered events demonstrate robust partnerships with local municipalities, the business community, and other organizations. The wide variety of events brings new and repeating customers to local businesses during varying times of the week and year, supporting local businesses. From Saturday morning farmer’s markets to night out shopping events, Main Streets’ festivals and events showcase each community’s distinct brand, culture, and partnerships.

Note: The above proportions are weighted averages of Performing Main Streets and Transforming Main Streets, based on survey responses from program leadership. Exploring Main Street programs also reported playing a role in their downtown’s social infrastructure, but at a lower rate and lower impact, which reflects their limited program capacities.
Collectively, volunteers in Oregon’s Performing Main Streets and Transforming Downtowns dedicated 272,086 hours to supporting their Main Streets. As nonprofit organizations, many of which receive limited funding support, Main Streets rely heavily on volunteer networks to achieve their efforts and impacts. Limited staff and operating budgets are substantial challenges for many of Oregon’s Main Streets.

“In my brief career as a Main Streeter, it has become abundantly clear that Main Streets are the heartbeat of our communities. There is a growing movement of community champions whose goal is to inspire people to live, work, visit, and even just pass through our downtowns and commercial districts.”
- Klamath Falls Downtown Association

“In Hillsboro, a relatively large city by Oregon standards, the National Main Street program represents both our steel toe work boots and our bifocal glasses. It keeps us solidly planted on a solid foundation, with extra toe protection when the need arises, while also guiding us with the vision of a well cultivated community center while not missing what opportunities lie in front of us each day.”
- Hillsboro Downtown Partnership

“Being on the Northwestern tip of Oregon where the River meets the Sea, it is easy to feel a bit disconnected from the rest of the state. For me, Oregon Main Street is about relationships that foster support, growth and inspiration. These connections have helped Astoria down the path of historic preservation, economic vitality and creative resiliency, resulting in a unique and vibrant downtown that both visitors and community members treasure.”
- Astoria Downtown Historic District Association
Oregon Main Street strengthens community networks, bolsters the economy, generates fiscal impacts, and fosters social connections throughout the state. Oregon Main Street and its state partners undertake such a wide range of programmatic activities and cater to the unique conditions of communities with vastly different needs and characteristics. As a result, it can be challenging for Main Street leadership to summarize what they do to their stakeholders, funders, and partners concisely or consistently. The figures, text, stories, and graphics from this report and its supporting materials should be used comprehensively to reach desired audiences, such as websites, marketing materials, press releases, grant applications, and through conversations with stakeholders.

Oregon Main Street leads the training, network, and resources that allow local programs to do what they do best: preserve their historic buildings, bring tourists and locals to their downtowns, create vibrant and attractive public spaces, retain and attract local businesses, and develop deep-rooted partnerships with the community. These activities produce a healthy business climate, create jobs, generate tax revenue, celebrate the local history, preserve the local character, and bring their communities together.

Oregon provides a way for any community to incorporate the Main Street model and offers a pathway toward greater program capacity and larger impact. In 2022, Oregon Main Street launched a restructuring of the tiers to four new Main Street community tiers: Accredited Main Streets, Designated Main Streets, Affiliated Main Streets, and Connected Communities. This restructure retains and strengthens the ability of communities to create or grow their Main Street programs. Further developing benchmarks and performance indicators for these tiers can help local programs demonstrate their achievements and showcase how Main Streets meet the needs of downtown.
How to Grow the Impact of Oregon Main Street in the Future

- Retain and Promote the Main Street Revitalization Grant. The Main Street Revitalization Grant is one of the most important tools of OMS. Since its inception in 2017, it has leveraged the capacity, knowledge, and partnerships of its local programs to preserve hundreds of historic structures and secure millions in private investment in Oregon’s downtowns. Continue and maintain this funding.

- Continue to Encourage Creative Programming that Responds to Local Needs. The programmatic efforts of Oregon’s Main Street communities reflect the specific conditions and opportunities in their districts and are as varied as the communities they serve. Local programs should build off statewide best practices and programs with a proven track record while retaining a spirit of innovation and a focus on the specific needs and vision of their community.

- Invest in Continued Success. Despite its successes, Oregon Main Street has one of the smaller state budgets within the National Main Street Program. The value of the program has been demonstrated. Now may be the right time to provide additional support at the Coordinating Program level and provide an annual grant to the top tier tiers of the local programs to help cover administrative and operational costs and provide enhanced stability and operational capacity.

- Continue and Enhance Partnerships. Oregon Main Street has demonstrated success with establishing state partnerships. Continuing to enhance the partnerships can bring additional value and resources to communities by building on these established and new relationships to find mutual resources to support local communities.

- Develop State-Level Program Operational Resiliency. Oregon Main Street’s program was developed by one dedicated staff person. In recent years, additional staff time has been committed. This is a good first step to a network that can sustain service through challenges and transitions. Maintain this additional staff time and consider developing a transition plan to help facilitate any future changes in personnel smoothly and in a way that retains prior knowledge and methods.
