Oregon Heritage/SHPO Heritage Hub Update: Special procurement notice has been posted

Below is an update about a new effort that will shape how Oregon Heritage and the State Historic Preservation Office support heritage work statewide.

Oregon Parks and Recreation Department has begun the procurement process for the Heritage Hub project. This long-term effort focuses on improving how heritage information is submitted, tracked, and shared. The project is part of the agency's commitment to serving as responsible stewards of cultural resource information in partnership with the public we serve.

The Heritage Hub, a data and process management system, will gradually modernize the systems and tools to support Oregon Heritage programs that protect and preserve Oregon's historic and cultural resources. We will be moving forward incrementally, and the project will bring existing processes into a more cohesive and accessible environment over time.

The initial release of the Heritage Hub will introduce a new public interface that will focus on the submission process for project review for cultural resource protection and survey and inventory processes for historic properties. The standardized processes will closely align with systems used by other State Historic Preservation Offices, with limited customization, while laying the groundwork for additional tools and programs to be added over time as funding allows.

Some existing processes will remain in place for a period of time, and the system will grow gradually rather than all at once. Certain features will continue to be available at no cost, while others may include fees to help support long-term maintenance and future improvements.
