Willamette River Water Trail Partners:

In 2004, I announced my plan to clean up and restore the Willamette River, from the headwaters east of Eugene to the mouth of the river as it enters the Columbia. A key to our success is getting citizens on the water to understand the incredible role that the Willamette River plays in Oregon’s quality of life. That is why I am so pleased to endorse this Concept Plan for the Willamette River Water Trail - it provides us with tools for Oregonians to access and enjoy this important river.

Through my Willamette River Legacy program, I directed the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department to use existing Parks and Natural Resource Funds for local grants, capital improvements and trail infrastructure. I also asked the Oregon State Parks Trust to make the Willamette River Water Trail one of their signature fund-raising projects. With the support of so many private, non-profit, local, state and federal partners, these goals are being realized.

Through this Concept Plan and the publication of the Water Trail Guides, access to the river will be improved, support facilities for river users such as parking, restrooms, waste disposal and signage will be developed, and adjoining private lands will be better protected. The work and dedication of each of the Willamette River Water Trail partners will make it possible for Oregonians to responsibly enjoy the many activities and resources the river offers now and in the future.

My gratitude and thanks go out to each and every one of our partners for their enthusiasm and energy in this project. The Willamette River Water Trail is a genuine gem that will be polished and cherished through all our continued efforts.

Sincerely,

THEODORE R. KULONGOSKI

Executive Summary

Project Area
The Willamette River is an ideal opportunity for novice to experienced paddlers looking for a natural experience filled with peace and tranquility mere miles from some of Oregon’s more populated areas. This document is a conceptual plan for the development of a water trail that will link together the existing publicly owned sites along the River’s bank through uniform signage, comprehensive maps, recommended trips and designation of camping sites. The plan covers the stretch of river from The Coast and Middle Forks to its confluence with the Columbia River, including the Multnomah Channel.

Coordinated Partnership
This plan was developed through a collaborative effort between the numerous public and not for profit entities who hope to develop this opportunity as a means of recreation and as a vehicle to raise public awareness about the river and the numerous restorations efforts aimed at making it an even more special place to enjoy.

Support For The Water Trail
In response to Governor Ted Kulongoski’s Willamette River Legacy, this plan was developed to meet the demands of the public. In a series of open houses and responses to questionnaires, creating this water trail had overwhelming support. The Oregon Parks and Recreation Department has designated the Willamette River as a state water trail. In Oregon’s latest Trails Plan, the Willamette River is listed as an important opportunity.

Development Of The Plan
Prior to coming up with recommendations, a comprehensive site inventory was conducted that recorded 200 pages of information on the publicly owned sites along the river. Three planning groups for the north, central and southern reaches of this stretch of river were formed consisting of non-profits, municipalities, paddlers and park managers. Each planning group analyzed the inventory and conducted their own site visits and then finally made recommendations for the creation of the water trail. The Partners synthesized the recommendations and collectively addressed issues such as signage, management and maintenance of the water trail and finally drafted this plan.

Management & Maintenance
Each land manager will be responsible for their respective sites along the Willamette River Water Trail. Islands and other public parcels incorporated into the water trail that are not currently receiving maintenance will be cared for by the volunteer oriented organizations. This plan envisions that the Willamette Riverkeeper, and the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department will take the lead on the overall coordination of the water trail.

Introduction

Project Scope
This plan analyzes and recommends actions for the creation of a water trail on the Willamette River from its mouth in Portland, OR upstream to the confluence of the Middle Fork Willamette and Coast Fork Willamette, and along these tributaries to their respective dams at Elijah Bristow and Cloverdale Access.

Defining A Water Trail
Water trails are stretches of river, shorelines, or lakes that have been mapped out with the intent to create an educational, scenic, and rewarding experience for recreational canoeists and kayakers. Oregon Parks and Recreation Department (OPRD) defines water trails as “corridors between specific locations on a lake, river or ocean. Water trails are primarily designed for small watercraft such as canoes, kayaks, rafts and drift boats. Necessary water trail facilities include a safe place for the public to put in, parking, restrooms, a safe place to take out, and in some cases day-use sites and overnight campsites. Water trails offer a variety of challenge levels on white water, moving water, flat water and tidewater and emphasize low-impact use and provide stewardship of the resource.” (OPRD, 2004)

A Prime Opportunity
The Willamette River is a ready-made opportunity for a water trail. Over 100 publicly owned properties are already well distributed along the river’s length—many with easy public access. About 70 percent of Oregonians live within 20 miles of the Willamette, so a large number of potential users are within a few minutes travel time. Governor Kulongoski recognized the importance of the Willamette River to those communities that developed along its shorelines. In his 2004 Willamette River Legacy he emphasized the need for communities to reconnect with the river. Specifically he identified the development of the Willamette River Water Trail for paddlers.

In its 1995 State Trails Plan, the OPRD identified the Willamette River as a prime water trail opportunity. During the most recent State Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan process, recreation providers reported a need for the trails plan to address a growing interest in canoe, rafting, and kayak routes (water trails) throughout the state. The resulting 2005 State Trails Plan proposes a state-administered water trail program.

Although the state enjoys a variety of high-quality paddling opportunities, additional recreational infrastructure is needed to satisfy a growing demand for paddling sports. Additionally, whether people actually paddle the trail, other popular resource-based recreation opportunities abound in the river corridor. As an example, participation in nature viewing as an activity grew by over 250% in the Willamette Valley in the last 15 years, (OPRD 2003), and what better place to observe nature than along the River?
Benefits Of The Trail
There are many valuable benefits to be gained from the water trail, including health and wellness from exercise, social benefits from group activities and interaction, educational, recreational, and environmental benefits, and increased opportunities for cultural and historical preservation. Additionally, water trails can be significant to local and regional economies. For example, in eastern North Carolina, the coastal plains water trail system produces 2.4 percent ($55.14 million) of tourism economic impact. When combining local and non-local expenditures, North Carolina’s coastal paddling experiences produced $103.9 million. Canoeists on the Kickapoo spend over $1.2 million in rural southwest Wisconsin. (Lindsy Johnson, Case Studies of Water Trail Impacts on Rural Communities, University of Oregon, Eugene, OR, September 2002)

It is hoped that the Willamette Water Trail will become a stimulus benefiting local community’s economies and the environment; that water trail users will gain a greater appreciation for the river, the ecosystem and the on-going efforts to protect it. The trail can become a signature Oregon recreation experience, and offers promising opportunities for adventurous partnerships. The Willamette River Water Trail can create new opportunities for experiencing Oregon—for example, the chance for a paddler to travel from Lane County to the confluence with the Columbia and on to the Pacific Ocean via the Lower Columbia Water Trail.

Purpose of the Plan
The plan is intended to establish a process by which the Willamette River can serve as a major recreational resource, community connection and economic resource within the framework set by Oregon’s State Trails Plan. It is hoped that the Willamette River Water Trail will serve as a template for the planning, design, and implementation of other segments of the state system. The authors of this plan have designed it to be a ‘living, breathing’ document that will continue to change and develop over time and as the water trail increases in use.
Project Background & Methodology

Planning Partnership
The 1st section, the mid-Willamette, was planned and developed by the Mid-Willamette River Connections (MWRC) workgroup, a grassroots effort of local non-profits, municipalities, and regional government entities. The second (upper) and third effort (lower) were planned through a partnership of entities led by OPRD with support from the National Park Service’s Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance Program (RTCA), Willamette Riverkeeper, the Willamette River Navigator and the Bureau of Land Management.

Inventory Of The River
A detailed inventory of publicly owned sites along the Willamette was completed by the Willamette Riverkeeper, the RTCA OPRD and other riverside site public lands management agencies. The inventory resulted in a comprehensive look at public parcels.

Planning Team
The Willamette River Trail Plan was completed through a group stakeholder process including OPRD, The Willamette Riverkeeper, The Willamette River Navigator with BLM, and other state, federal, city and county agencies and park providers with jurisdiction along the Willamette River. RTCA provided technical planning assistance to this effort. The plan represents the shared vision of all the partners and mutual support toward implementation over time.

The team comprised the region’s land managers as well as key stakeholders such as paddling representatives and non-profits. The team was charged with analyzing the Public Parcel Inventory for their particular reach and making recommendations for needed improvements.
Water Trail Related Tourism

The water trail will bring paddlers from within the state of Oregon and beyond. The potential exists for tourism related expenditures from these visitors. The challenge for communities along the Willamette River is in getting these paddlers off the river and into the communities where businesses can benefit from their visitation. Here are the recommendations that were developed out of numerous discussions during the planning process.

Support Existing & Start-up Water Trail Entrepreneurs
There currently is a lack of canoe and sea kayak businesses in the Willamette Valley. Boat rentals, guide/outfitters, and shuttle services are needed along the river to accommodate paddlers. Water trail managers should encourage and support these related businesses. Managers should consider partnering with outfitters to provide canoe and sea kayak rentals on their park site(s). Contact information for these businesses should be easy to find on the water trail’s website.

Partner With Chambers of Commerce and Similar Economic Development Entities
The Chambers of Commerce and tourism entities around the Willamette Valley are key stakeholders in the water trail and should be brought into the fold of water trail management meetings and planning sessions. These entities have a far greater knowledge of the businesses near the river and have the relationships and skill sets to effectively work with the private sector. In addition, they can assist in helping develop tourism and marketing strategies and materials.

Create Overnight Parking Areas
Most of the access points do not currently allow for overnight parking. Multi-day paddlers will need to have the ability to park a vehicle at their take-out and/or put-in. Park site managers should consider providing an overnight parking area or have information about where they can safely park near the site. Shuttle services and relieve some of the pressure of having to provide overnight parking.

Develop Paddler Friendly Businesses Along The Willamette
Hotels, bed & breakfasts, restaurants and other businesses that are happy to accommodate paddlers by picking them up at an access point and/or storing their gear while they stay, eat or shop. A contact list of businesses happy to cater to river runners should be generated and housed on the website and with Chambers of Commerce.

Install Storage Lockers At Key Sites
Sites along the water trail that are in close proximity to downtown businesses should consider developing storage lockers where water trail users can safely stow their gear and boats while they eat some lunch or stay at a local hotel.
Private Property & The Water Trail

Designating The Water Trail To Reduce Private Property Conflicts
Currently the Willamette River is a navigable public river and people regularly float down the river today without any clear understanding of which property along the river is public and which lands are private. Paddlers often do not know where to properly dispose of garbage and human waste. One of the stated goals of the water trail proposal is to protect private property by providing clear delineations between public and private lands along the Willamette in literature, maps, signage, and boundary markers. The project will also provide directions to public garbage and restroom facilities en route, so that people will be directed to the public lands and facilities and away from private lands. These efforts are aimed at reducing trespass, litter, and improper use of private lands along the river corridor.

The Water Trail Will Reduce Crime & Other Unwanted Activities
While no public place is crime-free, first hand experiences and studies show that crime and vandalism along trails are minimal and occur at a lower rate than most other public places. For example, a study of the Burke-Gilman Trail in Seattle found incidents of vandalism and burglary did not increase due to the creation of the trail system. Rather, the rate of vandalism and break-ins to adjacent property was well below the neighborhood average. The idea of fighting crime by bringing in more recreational users to an area has been successful throughout the country. Many attribute the lowering crime rates to the many “eyes” that recreational users bring to a well used area which tends to discourage criminal activity. Such recreational users also tend to form care-taking groups and share in the stewardship of the trail system and neighboring properties by promptly reporting any inappropriate activities. For this reason it is rare to find homeless camps and other such activities directly adjacent to well used trail systems.

Locally we have seen this process of “chasing out crime” by creating a well used facility along the Salem riverfront. Creating a Salem Riverfront Park which attracted crowds of recreational users transformed their riverfront property from a high crime, high litter area, with heavy drug use and homeless encampments into the jewel of the City of Salem. Like the Salem Riverfront project and many trail systems throughout the country, one of the benefits of facilitating more recreational users on the Willamette through an established Water Trail is that it will tend to discourage homeless camps and other criminal activities from becoming established in the Willamette greenway.
Outreach & Education

The success of this water trail will be due in part to how effectively information is distributed to the public. Because many of the users of this water trail will be newer paddlers, the dissemination of information and educational materials will be necessary to lessen the impacts of the increased river use.

Leave No Trace Principles
Leave No Trace principles including low impact paddling and camping guidelines will be made available to the public through signage at put-ins, in the river guidebooks, at outdoor related shops, agency offices, and on the website. See Appendix A for an example of the Leave No Trace guidelines.

River Guidebooks
Guidebooks will be developed for the entire stretch of river. Due to the cost of production and length of this section of river, two to three separate guidebooks will be produced. Information contained in the guidebooks will include such information as paddler safety, maps with river access points and public parcels denoted, river etiquette and Leave No Trace principles, suggested day and overnight trips and agency contacts.

Website
A website is a cheap and easy way to distribute information for paddlers. The river trail website (www.willamettelwatertrail.org) will be developed to include the latest information regarding current water levels and weather forecasts, site closures and/or changes, all of the information in the river guidebooks, and detailed information about each river access site.
Maintenance & Operations

Maintenance costs for water trail are anticipated to be relatively low. Since there is no trail or tread to maintain in a paddling route, the majority of the annual maintenance costs are projected to be upkeep of signs and clean-up and minimal maintenance of water trail related amenities such as paddle-in campsites and access points. In addition, most of the key sites along the water trail are already receiving active management and maintenance and the water trail will be one amenity added to the particular site. The sites that are not being actively managed such as undeveloped islands and boat-in only sites will require the majority of management and maintenance issues for the water trail.

Role of Public Land Managers
The individual sites along the trail route are managed by the agency that owns the site. Most sites outside urban areas are administered by Oregon State Parks and Recreation, though the Department of State Lands owns some islands. Cities, Park and Recreation Districts, counties, and the Army Corp of Engineers, will manage the waterfront parks in their jurisdiction. In addition to the managing agencies, the Oregon State Marine Board, Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife, and Sheriff Marine Patrols provide assistance.

It is assumed that whenever possible, the public land management agencies responsible for given sites will be the ones who will be ultimately responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of their particular parcels as they relate to the water trail. However, where gaps exist, volunteers and grant funds will be used to address those maintenance issues.

Coordination of the Water Trail
Coordination of the Water Trail is an important role that will need to be addressed. The coordinating entity should be someone whose jurisdiction would allow them to work over the entire water trail. This entity could be a public or non-profit agency. Entities that make the most sense include Oregon Parks and Recreation Department and the Willamette Riverkeeper. Regardless of which entity is the coordinating body, there should be one single person who is the contact for the water trail. This person would serve to organize and coordinate volunteer efforts, proactively work with and be available to private landowners along the water trail, and work with public landowners to ensure the proper management and maintenance of the water trail. The water trail coordinator could work with the various site managers to develop a list of annual maintenance needs (work plan) that could be distributed to the volunteers for completion. A cooperative agreement should be developed amongst the various land managers and the water trail coordinator.

Volunteer Labor
There exist a number of organizations that are already doing or have expressed a desire to do volunteer service projects on the Willamette River. Some of these include Boy Scouts of America, Willamette Riverkeeper, and Oregon Youth Conservation Corps. Volunteer efforts can support the water trail by either adopting a particular site along the route or providing labor hours for annual maintenance and/or special projects. Coordination of the various volunteer efforts along the trail will be essential to the long-term sustainability of route. Volunteer groups and/or individuals will need to have one person whom they can contact if they have questions, need assistance, or want to report a maintenance and management issues.

Memorandums of Understanding (MOUs)
It is recommended that MOUs be developed and signed between cooperating land management agencies and other involved parties. MOUs are not legally binding but act as a sort of formal handshake amongst the parties. MOUs can clearly spell out the roles and responsibilities of all participants and should be drafted for adoptees of specific sites as well those wishing to provide general maintenance labor. See Appendix B for an example of water trail maintenance.

Monitoring
There will be a need to monitor use and impacts related to the use of the Willamette River Water Trail. Over time, it may be necessary to implement a solid waste policy or perform restoration to sites receiving heavy use. In order to have the most useful monitoring data, it is recommended that a baseline inventory be conducted in the near future. This will be the ‘standard’ that subsequent monitoring will be ‘measured’ against. Oregon State University or similar academic institutions are a good source for creating the monitoring methodology as well as implementing the monitoring program.

Continuing the Discussion
Annual or biennial meetings of the Partners will be necessary to discuss emerging needs, trends, opportunities, etc. This Water Trail Summit will keep the Partners connected so there is always a name attached to an entity.
Design Standards

A Seamless Trail
Though the management agencies are varied, the water trail is intended to be a seamless unit, rather than a collection of different parts. Common design guidelines will be developed to establish the Willamette River Water Trail as its own feature. Whether a paddler intends a week long experience on the main stem of the river or a quick excursion on a summer evening, a safe and trouble-free experience on the river is the primary concern of the trail providers.

Uniform Signage
The main amenity of the trail will be the establishment of common signage along the trail. Currently, there are design guidelines for signage along the parcels incorporated into the Willamette Greenway system. These signs provide good information about some of the amenities that can be found on those parcels. However, there is a need for additional signage to better serve the public as they paddle along the water trail. The following are signs that will be installed along the water trail:

- Water Trail Logo – the Willamette River Water Trail logo will be attached to the Willamette Greenway system of signage to denote which sites are included in the trail system.
- Carsonite Posts – Parcels which do not have existing sign posts to attach the water trail logo will have a Carsonite (or similar) post installed. These posts are between 4 feet and 6 feet tall and less than 6 inches wide and are easy to install, relatively cheap to replace after flooding, and resilient to damage. In addition to the water trail logo, the post will have the following stickers placed on it:
  -  Land manager/owner of the site.
  -  River mile of site.
  -  A camping symbol if appropriate.
- Boundary Markers – Some property boundaries will need to be denoted so that accidental trespass is reduced. These should be standard Carsonite posts or similar.
- Interpretive Information – Certain sites with interesting natural or cultural stories are excellent places for interpretive signs or markers.
- Put-In Bulletin Boards - Just as land-based trails have a need for trailhead information, the water trail will benefit from having maps, river etiquette, safety guidelines and other important information posted near the put-ins.
Public Parcel Inventory & Recommendations

Conducting the Public Parcel Inventory
This plan was designed to be read in conjunction with the Willamette River Public Parcel Inventory (Appendix C & D). These inventories will be updated as facilities are added, improved, removed or other reasons not anticipated today.

The site inventory was pulled together from each of the land managing agencies. Willamette Riverkeeper conducted the research and site visit portion of the inventory. Oregon Parks and Recreation Department compiled the raw inventory data and created the individual site sheets. The Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance Program of the National Park Service designed and coordinated the creation of the inventory in conjunction with the Bureau of Land Management’s American Heritage Rivers Initiative.

Recommendations
The recommendations in this section were made by the three river section planning groups. Recommendations have been made with the intent of meeting existing and anticipated future needs. The land managers realize that implementing a plan takes time, patience, and a flexible approach to meet the opportunities in volunteerism and funding. Recommendations in this plan were made with the intention that things often change and recommendations may need to added or tweaked to address the current situation.

Restroom & Camping – Tables 1&2
Because camping and restrooms are essential to a long distance water trail, each amenity has a table (1 & 2) that displays the sites that currently have that amenity as well as those sites that are recommended to receive restrooms or campsites.

Recommendations by Agency
Each agency has a compilation of the recommendations for their particular sites that they manage.

Appendix A – LEAVE NO TRACE GUIDELINES

PADDLING SAFETY

Basic Safe Paddling Practice

- Always wear a properly fitted PFD (lifejacket) while on the water.
- Never go boating while under the influence of alcohol.
- Do not stand up in a canoe or kayak, and avoid weight shifts that may cause capsize.
- Avoid weather or water conditions beyond your skill level.
- Be able to effectively steer and propel your boat.
- Never float or paddle over a low-head (submerged) dam, fallen tree or other in-stream obstruction.
- Dress appropriate to weather conditions (including air and water temperature).
- Do not paddle alone.
- Inform others (friends, family, resource manager) of your trip plan.
- Carry a supply of food and water adequate for your trip length.
- Learn about your route in advance, especially potential hazards.
- Never overload the boat with more weight or persons than it is designed to safely accommodate.
- Plan for emergencies.

Additional Safety Skills

1. Learn how to self-rescue in the event of capsize.
2. Be proficient in proper paddling technique and learn to read the water.
3. Only take on challenges for which you are physically and mentally prepared.
4. Learn rescue skills necessary to assist others in your group.

RESPONSIBILITY

Environmental Ethics

1. Never litter. Always pack out trash.
2. Conduct all toilet activity at least 200 feet from any water body. *
3. Pack out human waste in sensitive or heavily used environments.
4. Do not disturb wildlife.
5. Minimize impacts to shore when launching, portaging, scouting or taking out.
6. Avoid building campfires, except in established fire rings, or in emergencies.
7. Consult the Leave No Trace website (www.lnt.org) and local resource managers for additional guidance.
General Outdoor Principles

The Leave No Trace Principles of outdoor ethics form the framework of Leave No Trace's message:
1. Plan Ahead and Prepare
2. Travel and Camp on Durable Surfaces
3. Dispose of Waste Properly
4. Leave What You Find
5. Minimize Campfire Impacts
6. Respect Wildlife
7. Be Considerate of Other Visitors

Plan Ahead and Prepare (more details and information)
- Know the regulations and special concerns for the area you'll visit.
- Prepare for extreme weather, hazards, and emergencies.
- Schedule your trip to avoid times of high use.
- Visit in small groups. Split larger parties into groups of 4-6.
- Repackage food to minimize waste.
- Use a map and compass to eliminate the use of marking paint, rock cairns or flagging.

Travel and Camp on Durable Surfaces (more details and information)
- Durable surfaces include established trails and campsites, rock, gravel, dry grasses or snow.
- Protect riparian areas by camping at least 200 feet from lakes and streams.
- Good campsites are found, not made. Altering a site is not necessary.
- In popular areas:
  - Concentrate use on existing trails and campsites.
  - Walk single file in the middle of the trail, even when wet or muddy.
  - Keep campsites small. Focus activity in areas where vegetation is absent.
- In pristine areas:
  - Disperse use to prevent the creation of campsites and trails.
  - Avoid places where impacts are just beginning.

Dispose of Waste Properly (more details and information)
- Pack it in, pack it out. Inspect your campsite and rest areas for trash or spilled foods. Pack out all trash, leftover food, and litter.
- Deposit solid human waste in catholes dug 6 to 8 inches deep at least 200 feet from water, camp, and trails. Cover and disguise the cathole when finished.
- Pack out toilet paper and hygiene products.
- To wash yourself or your dishes, carry water 200 feet away from streams or lakes and use small amounts of biodegradable soap. Scatter strained dishwater.

Leave What You Find (more details and information)
- Preserve the past: examine, but do not touch, cultural or historic structures and artifacts.
- Leave rocks, plants and other natural objects as you find them.
- Avoid introducing or transporting non-native species.
- Do not build structures, furniture, or dig trenches.
Minimize Campfire Impacts

- Campfires can cause lasting impacts to the backcountry. Use a lightweight stove for cooking and enjoy a candle lantern for light.
- Where fires are permitted, use established fire rings, fire pans, or mound fires.
- Keep fires small. Only use sticks from the ground that can be broken by hand.
- Burn all wood and coals to ash, put out campfires completely, then scatter cool ashes.

Respect Wildlife (more details and information)

- Observe wildlife from a distance. Do not follow or approach them.
- Never feed animals. Feeding wildlife damages their health, alters natural behaviors, and exposes them to predators and other dangers.
- Protect wildlife and your food by storing rations and trash securely.
- Control pets at all times, or leave them at home.
- Avoid wildlife during sensitive times: mating, nesting, raising young, or winter.

Be Considerate of Other Visitors (more details and information)

- Respect other visitors and protect the quality of their experience.
- Be courteous. Yield to other users on the trail.
- Step to the downhill side of the trail when encountering pack stock.
- Take breaks and camp away from trails and other visitors.
- Let nature's sounds prevail. Avoid loud voices and noises.
APPENDIX B

Willamette River Water Trail
Site Maintenance MOU:

Memorandum of Understanding
for Maintenance of ____________ (site to be maintained)
DATE________

Introduction
This Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) is executed to coordinate the maintenance activities of the ____________, a site along the Willamette River Water Trail. This MOU defines the working relationship needed to ensure the upkeep of the site and its related infrastructure. An MOU member of record is defined as an individual signer of this MOU, or the official representative, or delegate, of an agency or organization that is a signatory to this MOU.

For each member or member organization: This MOU will become effective upon the signing of this document. This agreement will remain valid until such time as the member or member organization provides written notification to the other signing party that it wishes to no longer be a participating member of this MOU.

Objectives of __________ Site Maintenance MOU
The objectives of the __________ Site Maintenance MOU are to:

- Coordinate the most effective use of volunteer labor;
- Provide for a well maintained and functioning recreation site opportunity;
- Demonstrate the collective desire of local and regional clubs and organizations to provide significant volunteer resources to the upkeep of the Willamette River Water Trail.

Role of the _____________________ (Land Manager/Entity Responsible For Site)
The ___________ (land manager) will serve as the primary lead for coordinating all maintenance activities along the C2C Trail. The ___________ (land manager) will provide a primary contact to coordinate with ______________ (entity signing on to maintain the site) questions, and reporting. The ___________ (land manager) will provide tools and expertise to assist volunteers whenever and wherever feasible.

Role of ______________ (Entity Signing On To Maintain Site)
______________ (entity signing on to maintain the site) will be responsible for coordinating the work of their individual members. In addition, said organization will provide a primary contact to ____________ (land manager). All volunteer work will be cleared with the ____________ (land manager) prior to the start of the work. _______________(entity signing on to maintain the site) will record and report to _____________ (land manager) all hours worked on the site.

Modification and Termination
Any party may terminate this MOU by providing thirty (30) days written notice to the other party. Upon receipt of such notices, the party will no longer be bound by the terms within the MOU.

This MOU may be altered at anytime providing that each entity who signed on to the MOU formally approves the changes being made. A formal approval will include a written letter with signature detailing the acceptance of the changes to the MOU.

HOW TO USE THESE WATER TRAIL MAPS
Keep in mind that the Willamette River runs generally north, so if you are floating with the current, you will need to start the guide at the back of the book and paddle toward the front.
Multnomah Channel

The whole channel is 22 miles long. In summer months, it gets significant use by large pleasure boats that cross back and forth up and down the channel, sometimes causing massive wakes.

6: Gilbert River Ramp
(CDFW & Columbia County)
This ramp far out on Sauvie Island provides great access to the channel, and to Gilbert River and Sturgeon Lake, which are part of the Sauvie Island Wildlife Management Area. The area is managed by CDFW. Gilbert River and Sturgeon Lake are typically open from Oct 31 to April 15 to protect wildlife, and to allow hunters free rein in the area.

9: Jl Collins "Coon Island" Park
This park on Sauvie Island provides a decent place to camp, though in summer months it can be busy with motorized boats.

18.5: Wapto Access
This access is a Willamette Greenway site with a dock, which is often used by power boats. There is upland parking though it is a ways from the dock. Due to the steep bank, other access is difficult along this greenway strip, though in time developing access off the river will be a priority. As there are few opportunities to have a primitive camp along the Lower Willamette.

1.0: Kelly Point Park

1-0: Scapoose Bay Marina
(Port of St. Helens)
This access point and nearby paddle shop make a good put-in for explorations of the bay itself, Multnomah Channel, and the Columbia River.

18.5: Sauvie Island
Boat Ramp
(Metro)
This is a decent access point that includes parking.
Kelly Point Park
GPS on beach: 45° 38.916 N, 122° 45.955 W
A park with a large cottonwood forest area, and long sandy beach. Great views of the Columbia are provided, as well as the confluence of the Columbia Slough and Willamette. There is a 100-yard walk to the parking area from the beach. Some may choose to utilize the put-in on the Columbia Slough with the adjacent mud/gravel parking lot. Soon this “tight watercraft dock” will be improved.

Cathedral Park
GPS just off from dock:
45° 35.198 N, 122° 45.854 W
A City of Portland Park that offers one of the only spots to access the river in the last few miles. The site provides an excellent entry to Portland Harbor, the most industrial area of the whole river. Access is best via the beach to the left of the boat ramp, or the adjacent floating dock.

DESCRIPTION

This is a large park that provides a range of opportunities to explore. The river interface is good, though most of the launch opportunities require scaling the bank/trail to the water’s edge. The best access is toward the main parking lot, utilizing the downriver portion of the park. There are a few areas to stop if one is paddling through that are upriver of the main parking area as in areas that are quiet. There is a small rapid at the upper end of the property.

DESCRIPTION
A large island frequently used by locals. It has great views of the Coast & Middle Fork Confluence. Side channel is shallow with a small weir made of river rock on the bottom end that can be paddled over. The site is noisy from the Highway.

The river can be a bumpy. The inventory on this stretch was conducted at about 575cfs, which provided enough flow. Higher water likely makes the few small rapids wash out, but one should be aware of interesting hydraulics at higher flows. The rapids are generally small with a few rocks to dodge, but all have a clear line through and are easy for tandem or solo canoe with gear.

There are strainers in the water or extending from the bank. There are areas where the river braids into multiple small currents around low rock islands that can be seen over. However, the outside bends of these channels can at times be choked with debris.

DESCRIPTION
This is another undeveloped landing that seems to consist of primarily trees and scrub brush. There does not seem to be any ideal places for camping, though one may be able to find a flat area large enough for a tent. There appears to be no road access to this site. There is a Greenway sign on this site, 193.8. This is across a row of houses with considerable noise from Jasper Rd.

DESCRIPTION
This park is located on a backchannel across from main stem river mile 175. The backchannel is scenic and has riffles and a few shallow spots. The island on the other side of the channel has a small OPRD parcel, but is owned by Delta Sand and Gravel. This backchannel has an abundance of wildlife, green heron, deer etc. It makes a very good start for a trip. One may need to be wary of leaving vehicles there for extended periods due to the isolated area.

DESCRIPTION
This is a large island with a small right channel. The opening of this channel is currently choked with woody debris. The island is mostly large rock cobbles with a little sand. There is a decent camp spot on the downriver side of the island inside the lagoon (see photo). This makes the best camp spot on the island. At the top of the island the main current sweeps left with some riffles, but offers no major obstacles. The island is remote, quiet and good for rock hounding.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice city park that offers restrooms (flushing) and water. There is a small boat ramp for the launch, and several picnic tables and benches that parallel the river. There is also a nice grassy area suitable for a lunch break. The park is near the central part of Harrisburg where one can find several small markets.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice island that has a significant channel on both sides. It is full of Willow and has a varied rocky terrain, though there are quite a few flatter areas with smaller rock cobble that is okay to sleep on. The downstream end has a small embayment and additional flat area for camping. There are no services on this island. Need to make sure this is DSL.

DESCRIPTION
This is a small park that offers a boat ramp, open grass, parking lot and pit toilets. The entrance and exit could be difficult for newer paddlers, as there is a significant eddy line right at the boat ramp, and one above the boat ramp. There are also snags immediately down river. Perhaps camping could be allowed if petitioned?

is quiet and offers a couple of distinct habitat types. The area along the main stem is fairly flat and away from the ramp perhaps more ideal for camping.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice undeveloped OPRD parcel that looks from East (Buckskin Mary) across the river to Sam Daws Landing. Both areas are separated by an island/peninsula. Each is quiet with a combination of open area and cottonwood forest. Buckskin Mary has more shade and a nice gently sloping beach. There are no amenities, but overall this is a good spot for rustic camping.

DESCRIPTION
This is a national wildlife refuge with abundant wildlife. This is a spot where we need to discuss what is allowed for access etc. The backwater has an abundance of birds and other wildlife (beaver and egret were seen near the entrance). There are two backwater entrances, each with slow moving water. On the lower entrance watch the fast main current creating an eddy line that leads toward strainers. This can be negotiated with a few powerful strokes.

DESCRIPTION
The area is forested with maple, occasional fir and brush. Riverside Drive provides land access. A good day-use area for land based/access activities. There is a decent parking area that appears to get decent use. There are primitive trails here and there.

In all, the site has very good scenery and habitat and is mostly flat. It also contains a slough as well as the river frontage. It can make nice lunch spot, although the take-out is not the best.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice site that is fairly remote. There is a power line over part of the property, but this is the only appearance of development. There is a narrow beach of gravel suitable for a take-out. There is a vegetated bench approximately 6 feet above the river suitable for camping. In most areas there is some river rock and brush, but one could camp fairly easily here once a space was cleared. Toward the north end of the site, the bench is less high and the space is more open.

DESCRIPTION
This is a large site that contains a multitude of trees, maple, cottonwood, fir etc. This could be a very nice site for water trail use if a few facilities were put-in. The slough restricts some access, yet on the whole it has a nice amount of riverside gravel beach that could be used as is. Need to work with OPRD about park use. One example is to work out a camping policy.

City of Albany
DSL Island (RM113.5)

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice island in the middle of the river. It evenly divides the river into two channels. It has a variety of trees, including cottonwoods. The southern tip is a large gravel area filled with willow and is suitable for camping, yet the best camp spots are on the right channel side of the island.

Here there are two or three low, grassy areas that have been used before. There is relative quiet here, outside of a bit of traffic noise from Spring Hill Rd. This is a very nice camp spot, though it has no services.

Black Dog Landing

DESCRIPTION
This site consists of a large peninsula facing downriver. It has a mix of vegetation and is undeveloped. There are flat areas on the south and north tip that could be used for primitive camping. The backwater is nice to explore, though one can imagine significant mosquitoes from this area in summer.

There is evidence of significant farm use of a site on river right immediately down river from black dog. This site is a combined DSL and OPRD holding, depending on the time of year and water height.

This is another example of a primitive site though could be left alone, or be a welcome spot for a camping platform.

This is a large OPRD tract that offers a good amount of primitive camping. In one area

This site has a mix of vegetation. The whole

DESCRIPTION
Located just below Buena Vista ferry and park, this park is close to activities yet, one can take the back channel to the northern end of the island where it is quieter. There are options for primitive camping, yet flat areas can be rocky, and there is significant wood debris in some areas.

The backchannel is quite scenic, but at any time of year it may have strong current in shallow water scattered with snags.

This site on the whole makes a very nice primitive campsite.

DESCRIPTION
This is a good-sized gravel island with a few cottonwoods and willows. It has a few flat areas, and rock and sand that can be used for camping. The site has no facilities. It is also within site of homes, though separated from any significant traffic noise. It has nice views and is protected from upland encroachment. Overall, this site is decent for boat-in use.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice parcel that has good access from the river. After going up a small bank, there is ample flat area under an overstory of cottonwood for camping. There are no toilets or water visible, so it is a primitive camp site.

This is likely the best place near Independence to camp. There were no unusual hazards. A small amount of car traffic was heard.

This site is rustic with no services. It is heavily vegetated and camp sites are rocky and dispersed, but the site is usable.

There is some seclusion, even though the island is across from Emil Makr/Lloyd Strange and there is some traffic noise from River Rd.

It is an easy paddle from Independence. There may be options here for a camping platform or other structure. Some use of the island was evident from garbage left behind, and access appears to be mostly from boat.

DESCRIPTION
This is a classic Willamette gravel bar. It is approximately three acres. There are flat areas composed of rounded river rock interspersed with willow. It is partially inundated with water at higher flows. There is little shade, but even so, it can be a passable camp site if one cleared the rocks.

There is no road noise nearby and farms border both sides. It does not appear to be an area that receives significant motor boat traffic. There are no services, so primitive camping is necessary.

DESCRIPTION
This is an interesting little island with a gravel bar extending upriver, and a small embayment on the inside at higher flows. There is a narrow backchannel with a few strainers that is not passable even at high flows due to significant debris blockage about midway through the backchannel. The entrance is shallow and swift, with passage into the backchannel only possible at higher flows.

Downriver power lines can be seen. This island could be used for primitive camping. There is a homeless shack on the upstream end with dwellers that could use the island.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice city park that receives quite a bit of use. It makes a good put-in and take-out, with an old boat ramp that leads to a power boats at main ramp; also nice lawn for lunch, etc. Wallace makes a very good

Hazards: The island splits the river and at higher flows one must be wary of willows in left channel with swift current in the main flow in the left channel. There are snags

DESCRIPTION
This is a very nice island that is within earshot of Salem traffic. That being said, there is a sense of seclusion here. There are flat areas where one can camp in a primitive fashion throughout. Some with high grass and others with sand/gravel mix. The left channel is better since there are homes and buildings on the other side of the island across the right channel.

There are no services here, so camping is primitive. There are also many logs and wood debris throughout the island which can make exploration a little more problematic.
On the whole, this is the best spot in Salem proper to camp on the river.

DESCRIPTION
This is an undeveloped site owned by the city of Keizer located inside a city neighborhood. It has willows and an uneven, rocky terrain. It may have a better landing at low summer flows, but on the whole it is highly vegetated. It could make a decent lunch stop if one can find a place to land. There is some flatter area with trees that sit on a short bench.

Site of the Wallace House, the oldest settlement in the Willamette Valley, built in 1811. The Wallace House was built to serve as the first fur trading post along the river.

DESCRIPTION
This site is interesting, given its close proximity to neighborhoods, yet relative lack of development. It has a long gravel shoreline with a low bench that is characterized by cottonwoods and other trees, and open space where one could pitch a tent. It is relatively quiet even though it is in the middle of the City of Keizer.

DESCRIPTION
This is the future site of a community park adjacent to Keizer. This site is also the location of the original Keizer family homestead and was the first plotted site in this section of the Willamette Valley.

This is a wonderful, large site that provides multiple opportunities for camping. There are several points the river can be accessed from the sandy landing at the upriver end of the park, to the gravel laden areas further down. There are many areas, some gravel and some grassy, that can be used for camping.

DESCRIPTION
This site is at the rocks site along the river. It has a vegetated bank with a small gravel beach (1-2 feet) and it appears there is no level ground or room for camping. A walk of the site indicated that it is not developed. The sight also contains a stream gulley. This site could sustain primitive camping if allowed by OPRD.

Hazards: There is an old piling structure in the back channel on river left that can cause a strainer hazard. It should be approached carefully by paddlers. Once past the opening, there are hard eddy lines on the left and right, as well as swirling water.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice island that has opportunities to camp throughout. The main channel side provides easier access via a continuous gravel bar. The back channel has steeper banks. The site is primitive for camping, and has ample trees and shrubs. This site can make a nice camp spot, and has only occasional distant traffic noise.

There are two houses on the back channel that have a low visual presence. The island on the whole is quite peaceful and has nice river views.

DESCRIPTION
Wheatland bar is a very large bar that has wonderful scenery. The interior of the island has a broad and open area with grass and brush on the upriver end. The main channel side is characterized by a broad gravel bar suitable for an easy take-out.

The back channel side is very quiet and scenic, and presents a couple of sand/mud beaches that lead to small flat areas here and there. One needs to search a bit more on the back channel side for a flat camp spot.

There is occasional noise from car traffic and the ferry just upriver. This site is very nice and provides an abundance of options.

DESCRIPTION
This site makes a nice stop from the back channel behind Wheatland. It has road access, though dirt road ends at the park with no real parking area. The area is remote, so car valuables are up for grabs.

The site has a large open grassy area, then a run upriver of forest and riparian vegetation that is fairly scenic. The site has a nice gentle sand/gravel beach.

DESCRIPTION
This is a large area with a good sized gravel bar beach. The ground is mostly uneven, and covered with river rock. Walking about 25 meters to a line of cottonwoods that parallel the river, one can find shade and occasional flat areas.

Camping is primitive here, with no water, toilets or other services. The aesthetic is not great, with a rip-rapped, denuded riverside across the river.

This site can make a good lunch spot or a camp spot if needed.

Hazards: There is a small passable channel on the river’s left that leads to Lambert Slough. The channel opening is passable at higher flows, but a few snags abound in the relatively swift current.

Immediately downriver, there are some snags, as well as rocks with current pushing into them. Paddlers will need to ferry river right immediately, or push up against the snags and rocks which could be hazardous.

PUT-IN/TAKE-OUT
Shore Launch ............................................ Rocky Boat ramp .................................................... No
Dock ........................................................ No

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice area with no real road noise and little traffic. Because of the gravel bars downstream, caution is suggested when leaving the site. The channel on the left has multiple snags and could be problematic. The right channel is better, but still contains a couple of significant strainers that have been a problem in the past.

This site is at the entrance of Lambert Slough and has abundant vegetation, with flat areas along the inner shoreline. This is a quiet area, though mosquitoes are present in summer and spring.

DESCRIPTION
This is a nice island with a mix of vegetation and a very nice, and fairly swift back channel.

The bank can be steep on the back channel side, but flat areas exist among the trees once one climbs a few feet up to the bench. The lower part of the island from the back channel has more open area with sand/gravel suitable for camping.

On the main channel side one can find flatter areas to beach craft and occasional flat areas suitable for tents. Suggest camping on the back channel side.

Hess Creek Landing

DESCRIPTION
This small parcel is too steep to use as a put-in and it is not recommended to access this parcel from the river. The steep banks make this a dangerous site to use on a river trip.

There is a small creek that flows through this heavily wooded parcel that drains into the Willamette River.
