

Oregon Standard Deduction

Prior to 1971, the Oregon standard deduction was based on a combination of federal adjusted gross income (FAGI) and the number of exemptions. From 1971 to 1986, the standard deduction was the greater of $1,050 or 13% of FAGI, up to $1,500 for single, married filing jointly, and head of household. For married filing separately, the standard deduction was the greater of $525 or 13% of FAGI, up to $750. The table below gives the standard deduction by filing status from 1987-2011.
