Allotment locations were derived from a 1913 allotment map compiled and drawn by A. Henderson in 1913 and a series of allotment maps created by R.L. Gault at the BIA in 1975. Reference data is from various sources. Data is displayed in Oregon State Plane North with NAD 1983 datum. Map information is not guaranteed to be accurate and may contain errors and omissions. The Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians provides no warranty as to the merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose. Original records may differ from information displayed on map. Footnote:

* The Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians has a broad and complex history and constituency. Allotments were issued to the 311 tribal members present in 1892, and the Tribe forced to cede the un-allotted reservation lands. Although later allotments were removed from the ceded area, none were created. For that reason, and others, tribal members sometimes took 48 Section Allotments and Indian Homesteads within the original reservation or elsewhere within our ancestral homeland. One must consult the following Agency allotment and other land acquisition to fully understand Siletz allotment history. Also, tribal number denotes who otherwise qualified for Siletz. Reservation allotments were issued to the Agent if they had received "off" reservation allotments elsewhere.

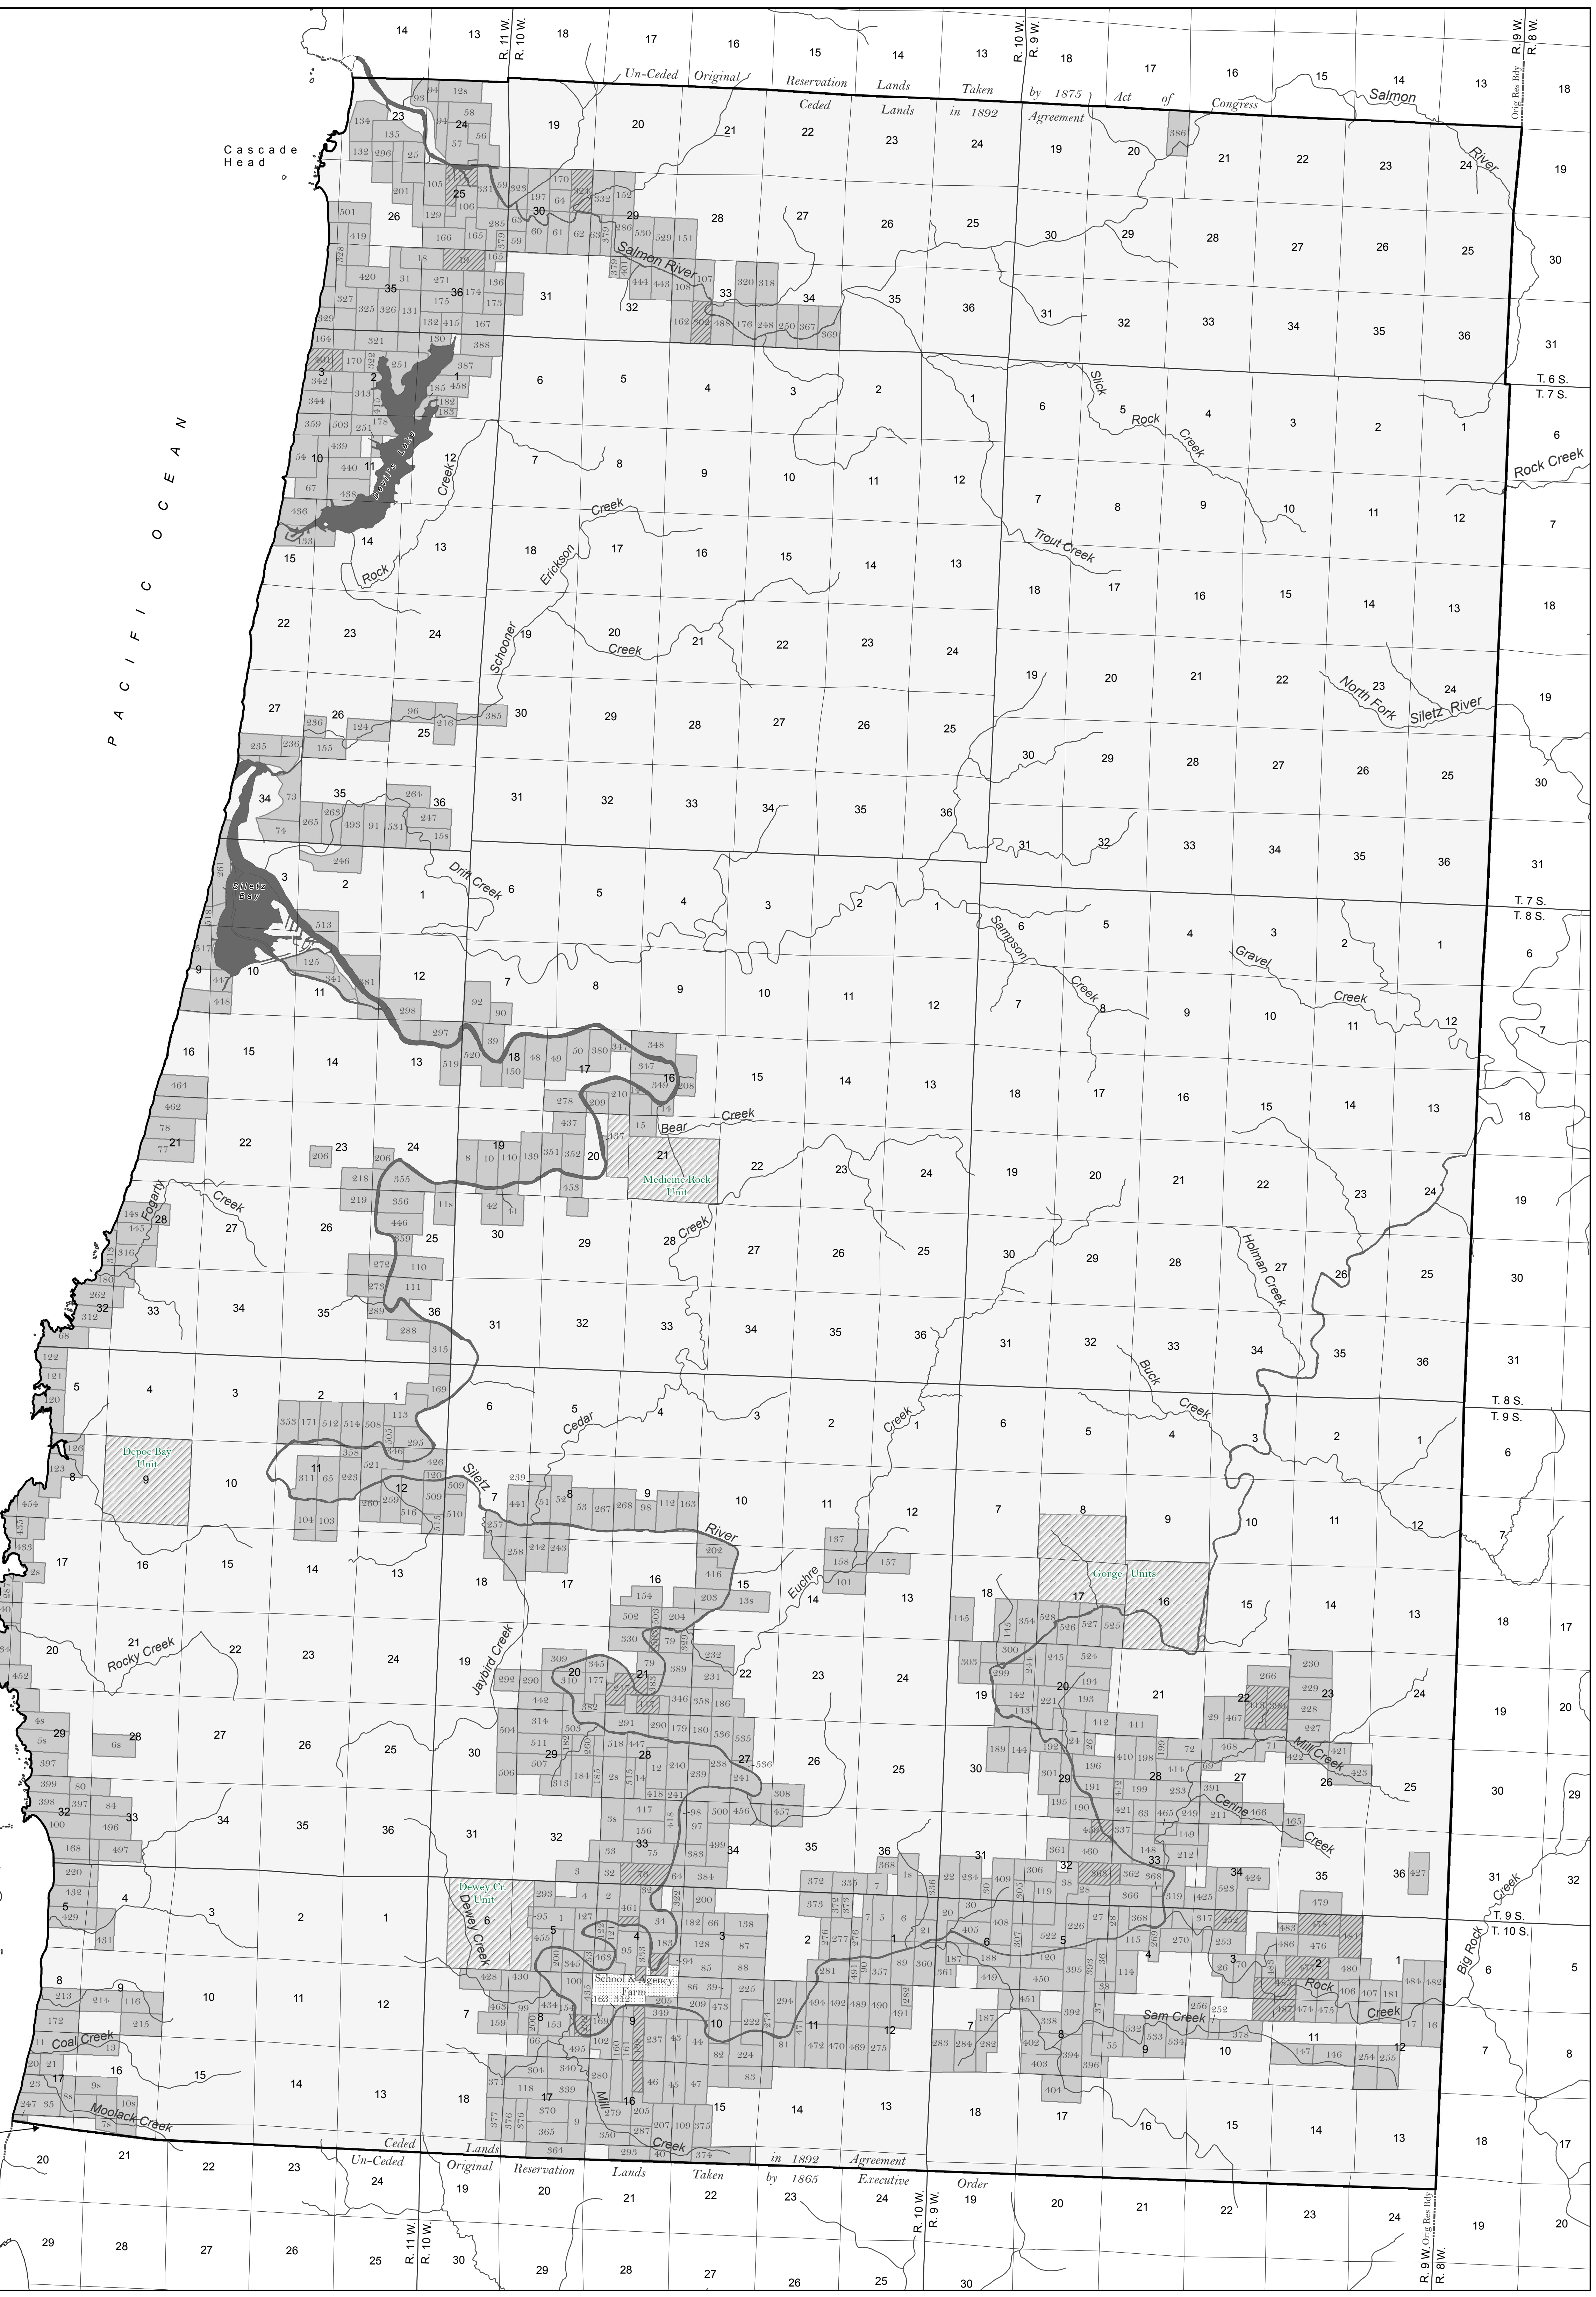

* Reserve for policy (Siletz Indian Homestead Land Act, 1901), by 1912, over half of the Siletz allotments were non-Indian owned. Loss of Indian ownership continued until Western Oregon Termination Act passed in 1956.

* Survey Error - after the 1863 Executive Order was signed, surveyors staked from the standard East-West line from the main north-south line, resulting in a long narrow triangle of land being mistakenly excluded from the reservation.

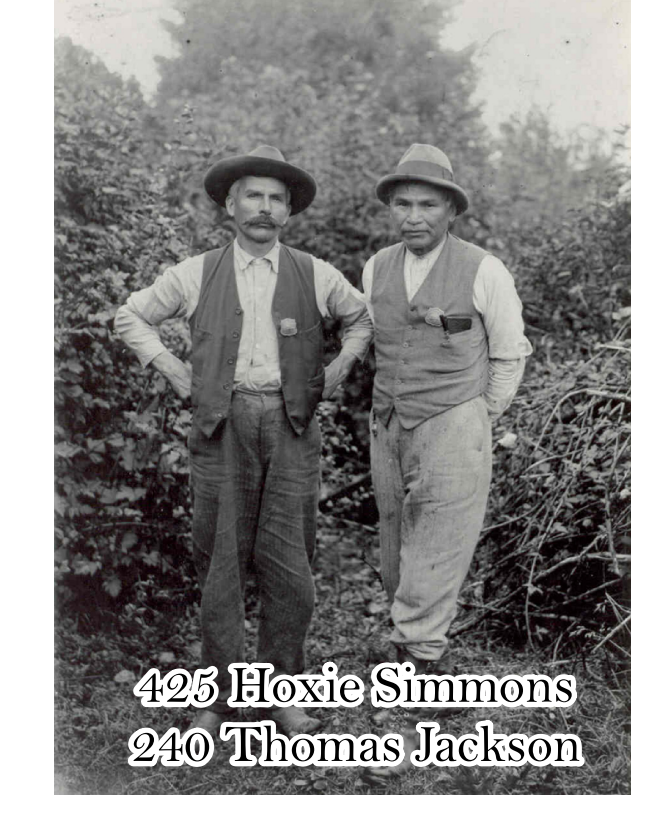

School and Agency Farm - in 1892, tribal members asked to have allotments issued from the farm, and the Agent refused. The U.S. returned to the school and agency farm in 1902 agreement and when the Siletz Boarding School was converted to a Day School in 1908, the School and Agency Farm was divided into town lots and sold, most of returning to the Tribe (origin of the City of Siletz).
