

Proposed 2025 Child-Level Metric on Issue-Focused Interventions Addressing Young Children's Social Emotional Health

Overview of Oregon Pediatric Improvement Partnership (OPIP)-led Webinars Scheduled to Provide:

An Overview of the Proposed Draft Metric for 2025 & A Forum for Receiving Targeted Input on Options Being Considered

Background: Social emotional health is the developing capacity of a child to form close and secure relationships with their primary caregivers and other adults and peers; to experience, manage, and express a full range of emotions; and to explore the environment and learn, all in the context of family, community, and culture. The System-Level Social Emotional Health Metric is currently an incentive metric for Coordinated Care Organizations (CCO) and will continue in 2024. This system-level metric is focused on driving improvements in CCO-covered social-emotional services for children from birth to age five and their families, with the ultimate goal of achieving equitable access to services that support social-emotional health and are the best match for their needs.

Child-Level Social-Emotional Health Metric to be Proposed for Adoption in 2025. In alignment with the glidepath endorsed by the Health Plan Quality Metrics and Metrics and Scoring Committees, the System-Level Social-Emotional Health Metric will be replaced by a child-level metric that will measure and incentivize improvements based on child-level receipt of clinically-recommended behavioral health care services provided by CCO-contracted providers. In order to align with the original intent and vision of the metric, parent and provider feedback, and learnings from implementation of the System-Level Social-Emotional Health Metric, the child-level metric will be narrowed to measurement of issue-focused intervention or treatment services. These issue-focused intervention services can be provided in an array of settings that the CCO contracts with in order to fulfill their role of providing recommended behavioral health care.

Purpose of these Overview and Input Webinars: OPIP will be developing the child-level metric aligned with the original intent and vision of the metric set out by the Health Aspects of Kindergarten workgroup, previous parent and provider feedback, and learnings from implementation of the System-Level Social-Emotional Health Metric. For this process, OPIP will be holding webinars to provide a tailored overview of the proposed metric for specific sectors of the health care system and then seeking input on options being considered for the metric. Below is a list of the webinar-based opportunities to hear an overview of the proposed draft metric and to provide input. In addition to the webinars below, OPIP has parent advisors guiding this work and is also holding input sessions with specific groups and organizations (e.g. Family advocacy organizations, OPIP Partner Committee, Provider organizations, and others.)
